BRITAIN UNITES WITH FRANCE TO RESIST IL DUCE

Democracies Determined To Reject Land Demand As Rome Parley Nears

By The Associated Press.
PARIS, Jan. 10.—An agreement between France and Britain to reject any Italian territorial demands for a share of the French empire was announced to the French cabinet today by Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet.

Following a cabinet meeting at the Elysee palace, shortly before British Prime Minister Chamberlain and Foreign Secretary Viscount Halifax were to reach Paris on their way to Rome, it was disclosed that Bonnet told his colleagues he had received assurance of "the complete accord of the London cabinet with the French point of view."

This, Bonnet said, had been conveyed to him last night by Sir Eric Phipps, British ambassador to France.

Chamberlain and Halifax, enroute to conferences with Premier Mussolini, arranged to "take tea" with Bonnet and Daladier here late today.

Note Sent To London
Bonnet told the cabinet meeting of sending a note to London declaring that France could yield no land to meet Fascist claims and that France was too great a power to bow to the intervention of other states in the dispute.

He then gave the ministers the British reply. The cabinet gave unanimous approval to the foreign minister's action.

The sweeping insurgent offensive in Spain, in which new successes were reported today, was a factor expected to enter the Rome talks in which Chamberlain would like to learn 1939 plans of the Rome-Berlin-Tokyo triangle.

Reports of growing German-Italian efforts to dominate Spain and her strategic Mediterranean outposts cast a shadow over the British prime minister's departure from London.

Rebels Drive On
With a flourish of the familiar umbrella that accompanied him to Berchtesgaden, Godesburg and Munich last autumn, Chamberlain left carrying with him last-minute reports from French Ambassador Charles Corbin that Germany's new fleet of "minnow submarines" was being built to hamper French-British shipping in the Mediterranean.

Authoritative sources here declared the prime minister would advise Mussolini to patch up his quarrel with France over colonies. Insurgent dispatches reported two of Generalissimo Franco's columns were converging on Tarra-

Eden Calls Roosevelt Talk Signpost For Liberty Loving

By The Associated Press.
LONDON, Jan. 10.—Anthony Eden today told an Anglo-American audience President Roosevelt's message to congress was "a signpost which points the way along which all liberty loving nations of the world wish to travel."

Speaking to the American Chamber of Commerce in London, the former foreign secretary, recently returned from a visit to the United States, said it would be difficult to exaggerate the tonic effect of that speech upon the British people.

"We live in a time and in a continent where liberty is discarded and x x x our people see more clearly the effort that is called for from them if they are to protect the freedom which is their heritage."

COAL MINERS JAILED IN CHESTER ROBBERY

Victim Tentatively Names 2 As His Attackers

Oscar Lashley and Rufus Newman, coal miners, both of Middle Run rd., are being held today in the Honcut county jail at New Cumberland, charged with the holdup and slaying of Robert Moore of Middle Run rd. late Saturday night.

The men were arrested Monday afternoon at a coal mine near Chester by Chief of Police Floyd Lyons, Constable W. E. Smith of Chester and Sheriff Dan Ferguson. Moore tentatively identified the men as his attackers.

Hearings will be held late this afternoon before Justice of the Peace O. C. Reynolds of Chester. Moore received a severe cut to his right hand, apparently from a knife of one of the attackers in a battle after they had taken $3.60 from his pockets.

Meanwhile, Hancock authorities continued their search for the two bandits who beat up Claude Martin, tavern proprietor, and escaped with three cases of beer Saturday night. Martin shot at them six times as they fled.

Splitting Of Rome-Berlin Tie Seen Best Way To Stop Hitler

Democracies Will Consider Chamberlain's Parley With Il Duce As Successful If Axis Is Weakened

By DEWITT MACKENZIE
Associated Press Foreign Affairs Writer

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—British Premier Chamberlain's parley with Mussolini in Italy will be a real success from the standpoint of the European democracies only if it should result unexpectedly in making a crack in the Rome-Berlin axis.

That is so because England and France just recently came to the definite conclusion that Nazi leader Hitler isn't susceptible to their policy of appeasement, or to any other influence excepting pressure such as might be applied economically or politically.

So they are out to weaken him—a fact which was just beginning to permeate well-informed quarters when I left Europe a few days ago.

Bonds Are Heavy
An obvious method of procedure is to try to split the brotherhood of these two paramount totalitarian chieftains who have been working so closely together that one is the shadow of the other.

Probably no one would be more surprised than the austere Mr. Chamberlain if Mussolini should make an about-face. True, neutral observers generally believe Il Duce would be happy if he felt free to safeguard his interests by swinging towards mighty England. Like most people, he doesn't like to have his eggs all in one basket.

The bonds which bind Hitler and Mussolini, however, are heavy. The last thing Mussolini is likely to do at this juncture is to take any action which would draw Hitler's hostility.

Apart from this ultra-delicate question, there are two other im-

PROTESTS HEARD ON FRANKFURTER

Committee Agrees To Hear Objections To Nominee

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—A senate subcommittee considered a half dozen protests today against the Supreme Court nomination of Felix Frankfurter, liberal Harvard law professor and a new deal adviser.

The investigating group agreed to hear several witnesses who have objected to the nomination and to receive a report on Frankfurter's qualifications from Dean G. Acheson, Washington attorney.

Frankfurter declined an invitation to attend the hearings, saying he had no wish to testify as to his own qualifications and would prefer not to leave his classwork at Harvard.

Denied Authorization
There have been no objections to Frankfurter's nomination from subcommittee members, but several expressed a wish to question him on his attitude toward the Roosevelt court bill, shelved by the senate in 1937.

Frankfurter once denied authorization of the measure, but never made a definite statement as to whether he approved it.

Another Roosevelt nomination—that of Frank Murphy for attorney general—came up for consideration this afternoon before a second senate subcommittee.

Murphy, former Michigan governor, has expressed willingness to tell the subcommittee about his handling of sitdown strikes. Several committee members have said they would like to hear his testimony.

Bridges Fights Murphy
Murphy was defeated for reelection last fall. Sen Bridges (D) of New Hampshire has contended his appointment demonstrates a White House policy of "naming lame ducks" to important positions.

Bridges also objected to the nomination of former Sen. James P. Pope of Idaho to be a director of the TVA. Pope, a consistent administration supporter, was defeated in the Democratic primary.

There have been reports that two other administration supporters beaten in senate campaigns would be given important appointments.

Former Sen. Fred Brown of New Hampshire has been mentioned for comptroller general and reliable informants have said former Rep. David Lewis of Maryland might be named to the national labor relations board if the appointment of Donald Wakefield Smith is withdrawn. Lewis, supported by the President, failed to unseat Sen. Tydings (D) of Maryland.

GRAND JURY CALLS 20 WITNESSES AT LISBON

Special To The Review.
LISBON, Jan. 10.—Twenty witnesses were called for grand jury questioning today as the January session entered its second day.

The jury convened Monday morning to hear testimony in the case of a retaliation threat directed against Prosecutor Karl Stouffer unless he called off his gambling inquiry.

He defied the writer, or writers, of the threat and said, "The gambling quiz goes on as scheduled." He took the letter, postmarked East Liverpool and signed with the phrasing, "a group of East Liverpool merchants," to the Cleveland federal bureau of identification.

"The G-men have entered the case," Mr. Stouffer said upon his return for the start of the jury investigation. A total of 30 witnesses were to be subpoenaed. Eighteen were questioned Monday. There are 38 cases on the docket and it is expected the session will go into next week.

PEDESTRIAN HIT BY CAR DIES IN LOCAL HOSPITAL

Robert Silliman, Resident Of Newell, Is Victim; Woman Badly Hurt In Fall

Robert Silliman, 48, of Third st., Newell, succumbed in City hospital today, apparently of injuries received when struck by an auto here last Wednesday.

He was the first victim since the city's traffic safety campaign started a week ago and Columbiana county's first fatality of the new year.

A woman was badly hurt in a fall from an auto, two truckers were injured when their vehicle ran wild, and drivers involved in minor mishaps here escaped uninjured Monday.

Hit While Walking
Mr. Silliman, received fractures of the right leg, head and hand lacerations and internal injuries. He was struck by an auto operated by Darrell Foreman of Bloomfield, while walking at St. Clair ave. and Broadway.

Coroner Arnold Devon withheld a verdict in the death pending a post mortem slated later today.

Foreman reported the accident to the police department. He said Silliman stepped into the path of his car. The victim was thrown across the bumper and carried across the intersection before the machine was brought to a stop.

Foreman was driving an auto belonging to his brother, Vincent of Bloomfield, and had his sister, Miss Audrey Foreman, as a passenger.

The victim was a son of the late Worth and Mrs. Sarah Jewel Silliman of Newell. He resided in Newell for about 35 years and was employed as a jugglerman at the Edwin M. Knowles China Co. He was a member of the National Brotherhood of Operative Potters.

He leaves four daughters, Mrs. Bernard Martin, Mrs. Virgil Martin and Mrs. Bernadine Savage, all of Newell, and Maxine Silliman, at home; one son, Clifford Silliman, also at home; his mother, Mrs. Sarah J. Silliman; six brothers, George, of Hopewell, Va., Clyde of East Liverpool, Willis of Paden City, W. Va., and Paul, Louis and Frank of Newell; two sisters, Mrs. Olive Lee and Miss Margaret Silliman of Newell and five grandchildren.

The body was removed to the Martin funeral home pending funeral arrangements.

Two truck drivers were hurt in a Newell mishap and drivers escaped uninjured in local mishaps Monday.

Woman Badly Hurt
Miss Aurea Nestlerode of Seventh st. in Monessen, Pa., is being treated in City hospital today for serious injuries received when she fell out of an automobile driven by John Lorenzo of Highland ave. in Monessen on route 30 east of here at 2 p. m. Monday.

Miss Nestlerode received possible fractures to both legs and arms and a possible fractured skull, as well as several cuts and bruises. Her condition today was described as fair.

Lorenzo said she was leaning against the door of the car when it swung open and she fell out, rolling over several times at the roadside. She was removed to the office of a physician and then to City hospital in an ambulance.

The truckers were treated for lacerations, cuts and bruises and their truck was badly damaged Monday night when the driver lost control of the vehicle on a steep grade at Newell's corners a half mile east of Chester.

Those treated for injuries were William Strom of Chicago, Ill., driver of the truck and Fred Gray of Clinton, Mich., helper.

The truck was enroute to Chicago from Follansbee, W. Va., with a cargo of 10 tons of finished tin plate.

Constables Lee Allison and W. E. Smith of Chester investigated. A truck trailer of the East Liv-

R. E. HALL CHOSEN AID TO ATTORNEY GENERAL

Attorney General Thomas J. Herbert in Columbus today announced the appointment of Robert E. Hall, Lisbon attorney and former East Liverpool resident, as assistant in his office.

Mr. Hall was called to Columbus Monday for a conference with Mr. Herbert, who assumed office with Gov. John Bricker yesterday. He was expected home this afternoon.

The appointment is expected to mean his removal to Columbus.

Mr. Hall was defeated for the Republican nomination for state senator from the 20th-22nd district in the August primary by Sen. Roy Merriman of Steubenville. He was a lieutenant-governor of the 10th division of Kiwanis for one term.

Mr. Hall was admitted to the Ohio bar nearly nine years ago. He has been associated with W. B. Moore in the Columbiana county seat.

2 ENVOYS PAINT EUROPEAN SCENE

Present Military Committees Report On Conditions

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Two American ambassadors brought confidential information on European conditions today to a secret meeting of the senate and house military committees, which soon will study the administration's defense program.

The envoys—Joseph P. Kennedy and William C. Bullitt, ambassadors to Great Britain and France, respectively—were expected to urge adoption of the armament recommendations to be made by President Roosevelt later this week.

Lindbergh Report Stands High
Col. Charles A. Lindbergh's report on German air strength stood high on the list of private information likely to be brought before the committee session.

This data represented first-hand information gathered during and after the September Czechoslovakian crisis, which Bullitt and Kennedy watched from their key observation posts.

One report on European air strengths which it was understood would be given the committees said that Great Britain and France capitulated at Munich when it was realized Germany outnumbered them in the air at least two and possibly three to one. Germany, it asserted, has been building planes at the rate of at least 1,000 a month with further plans for expansion.

Ambassadors Fear War
Both Bullitt and Kennedy have expressed privately their doubts of continued peace in Europe. Together with other diplomats recently reporting here, they believe Germany soon may start pressure on Poland and Rumania to open a corridor into the Soviet Ukraine.

'SPRING' HERE TO END WITH COLD AND SNOW

Weatherman Tired Of June, Orders January's Return

The Ohio weatherman, apparently disgusted with "June in January" weather, today reached for the overcoat he laid away 10 days ago and predicted:

"Snow flurries in north portion Wednesday night."

He said it would be cloudy and much colder tonight and Wednesday.

So there, East Liverpool just knew it couldn't last forever. Why once the mercury hit 61, that was on Jan. 5. As a matter of fact, the temperature hardly fell below 50 on any day since New Year's.

Lawrence Copeland, U. S. weather observer at Millport, blamed the spring-like weather on a southerly wind that ordinarily doesn't reach the district until spring.

The temperature varied only 5 degrees between midnight and today at noon, hitting 52.

The normal temperature for this time of the year is 20 to 25 degrees. Rain today followed the night's warmth, a possible prelude to the snow flurries in the offing.

Crash Takes 3 Lives

NEWARK, O., Jan. 10.—Deaths of two persons in a hospital here today raised to three the toll of an automobile-truck collision at near-Hebron. Mrs. L. E. Wright was killed in the crash and her husband and Mrs. Russell Chappell succumbed later to injuries. Mrs. Chappell's husband was hurt badly. All were from Bethesda, Belmont county.

Ohio Administrative Branch Returned To G.O.P. Rule; Ferguson Remains

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 10.—Gov. John W. Bricker turned to the pressing problems of governmental business today while other state officials who took office with him began duties in posts relinquished by Democrats.

Induction of the five Republicans yesterday returned the administrative branch of the state government to G. O. P. control, with the exception of state auditor, a post to which Democrat Joseph T. Ferguson was elected in 1936 for a four-year term.

The Republican-dominated 93rd general assembly, prepared, meanwhile, to receive legislation designed to cope with such crucial problems as relief, school and old age pension financing and to hear the governor's message later in the week.

Pledges Honesty, Economy
Gov. Bricker in his outdoor inaugural address yesterday, which drew cheers from thousands assembled on the west lawn of the statehouse, pledged honesty and economy as the chief tenets of his two-year term.

He has expressed the belief that state affairs could be administered without imposition of new taxes or increases in existing levies.

Indicating that little time would be lost in putting Bricker's policies into effect, the house finance committee scheduled hearings today on a partial appropriations bill totaling nearly $43,500,000 which Finance Director William S. Evatt said lopped $3,000,000 from estimates prepared by the outgoing administration largely through salary reductions.

Submitted yesterday during a brief meeting of the legislature, the bill contained a "safety valve" to prevent state spending agencies from using in any one month more than one-sixth of the half-year appropriation for any item without control board consent.

School Action Scheduled
Among the more pressing matters expected to receive early consideration was the state school foundation program, confronted by a $17,000,000 deficit. Legislation to renew expiring cigarette and liquor taxes, which help finance schools, was lost in the shuffle of an 11th hour special session of the outgoing legislature, which acted only on job appointments by retiring Gov. Martin L. Davey.

The former Democratic-controlled senate confirmed the compromise appointment of former Sen. Keith Lawrence to succeed Charles S. Leasure on the unemployment compensation commission but Republican leaders said that body would be reorganized to give the new administration control over the commission's 3,000 jobs. Revision of the tax commission to conform with Republican plans for supervision of income and expenditures also was anticipated.

While Gov. Bricker was being entertained at a smoker last night climaxing an all-day inaugural program, private citizen Davey was being welcomed at his home in Kent.

In a homecoming address, Davey indicated that his colorful political career, marked by tiffs with graft hunters, the CIO and federal officials, was not ended.

Bricker Aids Take Oath
"You never can tell what the old fire horse will do when the gong sounds," he said. At Columbus he had revealed plans for a southern vacation next month.

Bricker in his inaugural address to a throng estimated unofficially at 25,000, and to a host of radio listeners, emphasized his belief that federal, state and local governments should remain within their respective spheres; demanded governmental economy and called for "the establishment of common honesty in the affairs of government."

Preceding Bricker's oath taking, Thomas J. Herbert was sworn in as attorney general. Don Ebright

BIGGER WELFARE PAYMENT ASKED

Subdivisions Of County To Vote On Increased Rate

A meeting of representatives of all subdivisions in the county has been called for Thursday night in the office of Norman J. Hirt, state relief examiner in Lisbon, to vote on a new maximum individual allotment in relief disbursements.

The action was taken following a meeting in Mr. Hirt's office Tuesday of mayors and service directors of East Liverpool, Wellsville, Salem, East Palestine and Columbiana.

$5 Maximum Asked
Mayor Lee Copenhaver of East Liverpool requested that county-wide maximum of $5 a person a month be put in effect so that cities in the county would be able to buy clothing, coal and medicine as well as food.

The present maximum is $4 all over the county except in Wellsville, where it is $6. This will provide food, Mr. Copenhaver explained, but will not furnish other essentials.

Mayors Copenhaver, George Harroff of Salem and Walter A. Hunston of East Palestine were understood to be in favor of the new rate, which also was suggested by the state office. They will present their case at the meeting Thursday night.

Each subdivision has one vote in matters of county relief allocations. The new rate would give a larger allocation to cities where the need is greater than in rural communities and where clients are unable to raise any of their own food.

Will Give Foods
Surplus commodities will be distributed to East Liverpool city and Liverpool township direct relief clients from the Central fire station relief headquarters in St. Clair ave. Wednesday from 9 a. m. to 4 p. m.

Approximately 1,400 pounds of butter, 4,600 pounds of corn meal, 500 sacks of flour and 1,400 pounds of raisins have been received here for distribution.

Applicants have been advised that they must furnish their own containers.

ROOSEVELT DECIDES ON CARIBBEAN CRUISE

Trip To Begin About Feb. 18 Under Tentative Plans

By The Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—President Roosevelt, it was learned authoritatively today, has decided tentatively on a Caribbean cruise starting about Feb. 18.

The trip will have the double purpose of enabling him to witness part of the combined fleet maneuvers between Cuba and the South American coast and of affording him relaxation from the grind of getting the new congress well on its way.

Although three ships are under consideration for the journey, official sources thought the Cruiser Houston, an old favorite for presidential voyages, would be used.

The President, it was said, probably will embark at Charleston, S. C., Feb. 19 or 20 and spend about 10 days or two weeks cruising and watching the mimic fleet and air battle in defense of the Panama Canal.

MARTIN ASKS SPECIAL CONVENTION OF U.A.W.

By The Associated Press.
DETROIT, Jan. 10.—Hon. Martin, facing bitter factional opposition to his leadership of the CIO united automobile workers, announced after an executive board meeting today he would ask that a special convention of the union be assembled in Detroit "as soon as possible."

A formal request for such a convention will be made to the union's executive board at a meeting this afternoon, Martin said. Approval of the board, on which Martin's opponents hold a majority, is required for an official convention call.

Martin said the convention, if held, would replace the regular biennial U. A. W. convention which had been set for Toledo, O., next August. He said he believed representatives of the local unions could be named to meet in Detroit "on or before March 1."

WPA FUND VOTE TO TEST POWER OF ROOSEVELT

Group In House Will Return Decision Today On Plea For $875,000,000

By The Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 10.—Congressional economy advocates and critics of "politics in relief" moved rapidly today toward an initial showdown with Roosevelt forces over the Works Progress Administration.

Interest in the outcome was heightened on Capitol Hill by its being the first test of the President's strength in both house and senate.

On the house side, the issue was drawn by Mr. Roosevelt's request for an $875,000,000 appropriation to finance WPA until June 30, and on the senate side, by his nomination of former WPA Administrator Harry Hopkins to be secretary of commerce.

Influential members of a house subcommittee considering the WPA appropriation predicted a smaller sum would be recommended. Some wanted to cut it as low as $500,000,000.

Private Conference Held
The subcommittee was called together at 1 p. m. to make its decision. Democratic members of the group held a private conference yesterday afternoon with Speaker Bankhead and Floor Leader Rayburn, but there was no indication whether those administration representatives succeeded in holding them in line or whether a compromise figure was agreed upon.

WPA Administrator F. C. Harrington declared the sum requested by the President was necessary if WPA was to make no drastic reduction in relief work. He was understood to have advised the subcommittee that at the present 3,000,000-job level, there still were 1,000,000 persons eligible for work relief who were not getting it.

Rep. Woodrum (D) of Virginia, subcommittee chairman, said on the other hand he was his belief that the WPA was a substantial curtailment of its program without causing any great suffering by the people who are in need.

Hopkins To Face Committee
Meanwhile, members of the campaign expenditures committee were studying the report of the campaign expenditures committee, which charged the WPA with political activity preparatory to questioning Harry Hopkins tomorrow.

After voting yesterday to request the former WPA administrator to appear, some committee members hinted they were interested in learning how much of the alleged political activity had been known to the "high-ups" here.

The campaign committee's report avoided any criticism of Hopkins personally, although it referred at some points to Aubrey Williams, National Youth Administration chief who was his first assistant.

There appeared no likelihood Hopkins' nomination would be disapproved.

With the legislative program still in the formative stage, there was little work for the senate and house themselves. The newly-strengthened Republican forces in the house, which indulged in an afternoon of heckling the administration yesterday, will hold a party conference soon to work out a more definite policy for the session.

Rep. Woodrum (R) of Michigan, conference chairman, predicted the minority would be "a great deal more active" than in recent sessions.

John D. M. Hamilton, Republican national chairman, talked with numerous house Republicans yesterday. Influential party members said he apparently had decided to let members work out party plans from day to day at the Capitol, depending on legislative developments.

DECEMBER DAM TONNAGE MARKS RECORD FOR 1938

Shipping Rises 21,840 Tons To 386,000, Best Period Of Entire Year

Ohio river shipping through lock 8 here jumped 21,840 tons in December to register the largest tonnage, 386,000, for any month in the recession year of 1938.

The second largest tonnage was 376,000 in October. The November shipping dropped to 364,160.

Increased business activity in steel mills in the Pittsburgh and Wheeling districts and general business upturn here and all the way down the river to the southern ports were believed to be the cause of the sudden increase during the first really cold month of the winter season.

Equipment Total Rises

The heavy tonnage was carried on 1,350 pieces of equipment, 34 more than in November.

The largest galu was in pipe shipments, which were 50,250 tons, 14,250 more than in the previous month. Most of this tonnage is shipped to Louisiana, Memphis and Galveston for trucking to oil fields.

Other big gainers were scrap iron, up 11,000 tons to 19,000; farm products, up 2,375 to 4,375; gasoline, up 2,450 to 33,150; fluorspar, up 2,200 to 6,600 and miscellaneous steel, up 1,400 tons to 12,400.

The biggest reduction was in pig iron, which dropped 6,000 tons to 1,200. Other losses were in coal, down 2,050 to 211,250; fine dust, down 1,150 to 2,300; coke down 600 to 23,700; sand down 600 to 1,150, and tinplate, down 150 to 2,350.

Tonnage in other products were: Acid, 1,300; gravel, 250; machinery, 300; general merchandise, 1,225, and tar, 5,600.

Repair parties of the United States engineers in Pittsburgh took advantage of the open water of the last few days to begin routine repairs to gates and locks at dams 7 and 10.

River Rises To 12.3

The river reached the stage of 12.3 feet at midstream here Monday.

All shipping on the river was tied up Monday morning until 11 a. m. by heavy fog, which cleared later in the day.

Traffic at dam 8 included the LaBelle down with nine barges of coal; the Betty up with six empties and one of gasoline, the Champion Coal down with six of coal, the Shawnee down with one of coal and one of pipe, the Smoky City down with two of pipe and the Katie Lyons down with four of pipe, one of tinplate and four empties.

The Shawnee and the Smoky City are to turn over their tow to the Campbell Transportation Co. downriver for delivery at southern ports. The Katie Lyons is making the trip to Memphis.

COUNTY HUNTING GROUP REELECTS

Association Presidency Goes To Ralph Wang Again

Special To The Review.

LISBON, Jan. 10.—Present officers were reelected for another term of a year at the monthly meeting of the Columbiana County Fish and Game Protective association in the Moose hall here Monday night.

Ralph Wang of North Georgetown is president, Willis Martin of Summitville, vice president, and Clarence Loch of Salineville, secretary-treasurer.

The secretary's annual report showed $1,338 collected by the organization in 1938, practically all of which was spent in new stock of rabbits and other wild game released in the county.

The association endorsed Allen Morrow of Salineville for permanent appointment as a state game protector. Mr. Morrow has been working under a probationary appointment for several months and at present is employed in the western part of the state.

Lou W. Boring of Lisbon, Columbiana county game protector, also gave a report of his year's work. He said the state had promised to send from 1,500 to 2,000 rabbits to Columbiana county this year. This will be in addition to the 500 Missouri rabbits which the sportsmen's association plans to liberate.

The association will continue its membership campaign until July. Merchandise prizes will be presented the four members enrolling the largest number of new members.

PWA PROJECTS TOTAL MILLION FOR BEAVER

Program Termed Biggest In County's History

Special To The Review.

BEAVER, Jan. 10.—The PWA recently launched the greatest construction program ever undertaken in Beaver county, it was revealed today in a year-end report by E. N. Osborne, PWA traveling engineer, to Douglas Andrews, associate regional director.

At the end of 1938, projects totaling $1,000,000 were launched in various sections of the county. Lewis Vincent of Beaver is resident engineer inspector in charge.

Work commenced in December on the new $199,799 infirmary at the Beaver county home, the $54,544 school in Center township and the $50,834 fire station at College hill. Construction is well under way and actively progressing on the $168,185 Rochester unit of the state highway garage, the $143,740 water works additions at Ambridge, the $127,273 schools in Hopewell township, the $87,500 joint school in Darlington township, the $74,860 addition to the Harmony township elementary school and the $66,500 Aliquippa school.

Work was completed on the $33,107 paving project at Ambridge last January.

Since all projects must be completed by June 30, 1940 PWA engineers estimate that employment in this 18-month program will rise rapidly during normally slow winter months to reach a peak next spring. This peak level will be maintained throughout most of 1939.

LUTHERANS PLAN ORGANIZATION OF CHILDREN GROUP

Youngsters Under 12 Will Be Eligible; Membership To Be Taken Saturday

In keeping with recommendations made at the recent Baltimore convention of the United Lutheran Church in America, a new group known as the "Children of the Church," will be organized in St. John's Lutheran church next Saturday afternoon.

Membership in the society, which will replace the Light Brigade and the Junior Luther League, will be confined to children up to and including 12 years of age.

Society To Supervise
At the Baltimore convention, the Women's Missionary society, of each church was delegated to sponsor such organizations, and in St. John's church, the Willing Workers society was named to assume charge of the movement.

The purpose of the organization will be to promote the work of the Lutheran church. The Bible, catechism, the life and work of the church, missions and citizenship will be stressed.

The group will meet on the second and fourth Saturday of each month from 1:30 to 4 p. m. For the study periods the members will be in three groups. The first will consist of the beginners, children up to and including six years of age. Mrs. William Wilson will be in charge of this class, assisted by Miss Shirley Strobel.

The next group, the primary department, will be children, seven, eight and nine years of age. Mrs. Raymond Hanley will be the director, assisted by Miss Dorothy Strobel.

The other group will be juniors and will consist of children 10, 11 and 12 years of age. Mrs. Allen Peppin will be in charge of this class, being assisted by Miss Pauline Trautman. Slogans for the beginners will be "We are the children of the church," for the primary it is "Helpers in the church" and for the juniors, "We want to know."

Assembly Periods
The first part of the semi-monthly meetings will consist of an assembly period, followed by worship, memory work, singing and a story hour. A recreation period during which refreshments will be served will conclude the meeting.

The school will be taken at each meeting. Twenty percent of the funds collected will be retained for local use while the other 80 percent will go to the United Lutheran church in America for mission work.

Mrs. Leonard Echols has been appointed leader and organizer for the organization. Her assistant will be Mrs. Frank Shone. Miss Ruth Boxwell will be secretary-treasurer.

as state treasurer, Earl Griffith as secretary of state and Paul M. Herbert as lieutenant governor. The lieutenant governor earlier had been installed as presiding officer of the new senate.

Sworn in by the governor's secretary, Don Power, were: Charles H. Jones as commerce director, Jacob B. Taylor as liquor director, George A. Strain as industrial relations director, John T. Brown as agricultural director and Charles L. Sherwood as public welfare head. Col. Robert Reighner was delayed and sworn in later as highway chief.

In the vaulted rotunda Bricker shook hands with an estimated 10,000 well-wishers. Maj. John Eckstrom, one of Bricker's military aids who estimated the crowd, said the handshaking raised four blisters on the governor's hand.

Assisting Bricker at the reception was U. S. Sen. Robert A. Taft, who with Bricker has been mentioned as possible party presidential timber. Taft spoke briefly at the inaugural. He and Mrs. Taft left for Washington later.

Mrs. Bricker presided at a tea in the executive mansion for visiting Republican women. Attired in an afternoon dress of deep amethyst, ornamented with a brooch, Ohio's charming first lady greeted some 1,500 guests.

'GANG MURDER' SEEN IN ROADSIDE SLAYING

Pittsburgh Man, 49, Found Stabbed And Shot

By The Associated Press.
PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—Two sons of a Pittsburgh man mysteriously slain early today in what detectives said they believed was a "gang murder" identified the victim at the county morgue as 49-year-old Sam Mollice, former convict.

He had been stabbed "about 14 times, probably with a stiletto" and shot four times, said County Detective A. T. Lorch, who added: "We think it's a gang murder but we don't know yet what the motive was."

The body was found along a rural road. The 14 stab wounds were in the shape of a heart.

The sons, Frank, 20, and James, 18, said their father left his home last night. He wore no overcoat and did not say where he was going or whom he was to meet.

Identified as a laborer for a construction company, the victim was well but not expensively dressed. Detectives reported they found a gold watch and chain in the clothing and that this was another indication robbery was not a motive for the slaying. No money was found.

State Motor Patrolmen Edward G. Crone and Norman Homel said a farmer living near the scene in nearby Robinson township reported he heard an automobile on the road and then heard a voice pleading: "Please don't kill me."

Two shots were fired said the farmer, Italo Sicher, then two more shots before the auto sped away. Sicher and other neighbors notified police.

ATTORNEYS REAFFIRM SECOND JUDGE PLANS

Bar Will Seek Legislative Action On Proposal

The Columbiana County Bar association at a meeting in the courthouse at Lisbon Monday reaffirmed its endorsement of a proposal for the appointment of a second common pleas judge for the county.

Charles Boyd of East Liverpool, president of the association, was directed to appoint a committee which will draft a bill to be presented in the state legislature providing for the election of another judge. Mr. Boyd said that the committee of three persons would be appointed shortly.

Two years ago, the association endorsed a proposal for the election of a second judge in the county, claiming that one judge cannot handle the assignments.

Frequently, outside judges are brought to Lisbon to assist in clearing the docket. In 1938, the movement for a second judge failed to materialize and the time limit for the filing of new bills had expired.

The attorneys adopted a resolution of thanks to Francis Lang of East Liverpool for his service on the county notary board. Mr. Lang recently resigned and was replaced by Attorney George Lafferty of Lisbon.

The county organization will entertain with a dinner in the Travelers hotel here on Saturday, Jan. 21. Carl Armstrong of Pittsburgh, who was disbarred from the NLRB hearing in the Weirton Steel Co. case some months ago, will be the speaker.

RETALIATION BLAMED FOR STRIFE IN WORLD

By The Associated Press.
CLEVELAND, Jan. 10.—Dr. Arthur E. Morgan, former TVA official and one-time president of Antioch college, holds that international retaliation is a fundamental cause of strife among the world powers.

"If the young German republic following the World war had been helped by a spirit of aid instead of retaliation," Dr. Morgan told the Cleveland section of the American Society of Civil Engineering last night, "that Republican government could have found its feet and the rise of Nazism could have been avoided."

Referring to the TVA, from the directorate of which he was removed, Dr. Morgan said:

"I have sympathy with the aims and purposes of the new deal, yet misdirected power, the saying of one thing and the doing of another, is indicative of many of the arbitrary powers that enforced the condition that made the new deal necessary."

ish statesman summoned up a widespread belief for me the other day in London when he said:

"Is there anybody so foolish as to believe that Italy and Germany are not intervening in Spain for what they can get out of it?"

"Germany is in this thing," he continued, "because the Fatherland has vowed to smash France one day and wants to surround her with hostile forces. Spain would make a valuable ally for the Reich."

"Italy is interested in having an ally at the gateway of the Mediterranean. That would be a serious menace to Britain's control in this zone."

That pretty well sums up what a lot of statesmen are thinking. And that is somewhat of a nut for Premier Chamberlain to crack.

Should he return home from his hunting trip fairly empty handed, it would cause little surprise in any of the chancelleries of Europe.

DERBY TRAINS TO RUN OVER NEW TYPE RAILS

Change Will Make For More Speed, Fewer Derailments

Earl M. Carlton, boys' work secretary of the Y. M. C. A., announced today changes in track construction that will make for more speed and fewer derailments in the annual electric train derby which will get under way at 7:30 Wednesday night in the 'Y' gym.

The new feature is the use of recently perfected "wide angle" track on curves. This track comes in sections with a 22½-degree curve.

angle instead of the usual 45-degree type. Eight sections of the new track will be used on each turn instead of four of the old type.

The result is a larger oval with a wider curve which will allow engineers to open the throttle wide and let 'em roll with fewer derailment hazards on the turns.

Seven more entries were received today, bringing the total of contestants to 20. Those who signed today are: Harry Pelly, Charles Strauss, Charles Haddleton, Robert Brown, Walter Stier Jr., Edwin McGinnis and Harold Watson.

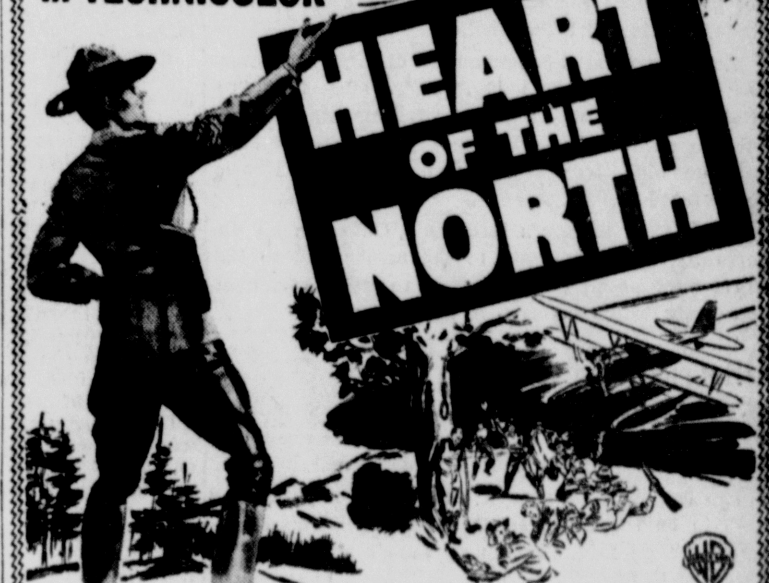

Mr. Carlton stressed the fact that entries will be received at the 'Y' right up to the beginning of the first race.

Gov. Bricker's Leadership

GOV. BRICKER'S inaugural address Monday furnished additional proof that Ohio elected itself a governor last November who has a sound, workmanlike conception of the job.

The way to save representative democracy is to make it serve the people where they come into contact with government directly—in their local communities and states. "That cannot be done by taking government further away but by keeping it at home," is Gov. Bricker's belief.

There must be a "common honesty." There must be "leadership of the many." There must be a "revitalization of state and local governments throughout the nation." These are not partisan objectives, but the objectives of all men and women who value freedom.

Under Gov. Bricker's leadership Ohio has an opportunity to demonstrate to the nation and to the world that nothing will happen to self-government in a state which believes in preserving it.

A Roaring Success

IT WAS a refreshing change to hear a non-political and disinterested comment on the Jackson day dinner in Washington last Saturday night.

The commentator was a fellow who happened to tune in on the broadcast. "I wasn't particularly interested," he said, "but there wasn't anything else I wanted to hear."

What did he think of it?
"Well," he replied, "it sort of upset me."

He was upset because of anything President Roosevelt said?
"No, that wasn't it," he explained, "it was because a crowd of people who could afford to put out $100 for dinner made noises like that. They yelled like wild men, they whistled—why it was as though all of them had gone back 26,000 years."

He was reminded that this is something that goes with partisan politics. Hadn't he ever listened to the broadcast of a national convention?

"Oh sure," he responded, "but they didn't pay $100 a plate. You'd think anyone able to afford that wouldn't be likely to act like a wild man. What makes them holler so much do you suppose? Are they mad, or nuts or something?"

Who knows? Maybe all three. Democrats and Republicans do it with equal fervor, though it must be admitted the Democrats, thanks to the rebel yell, make more noise.

A January Joke

THIS is a warning to those blithe spirits in East Liverpool who are looking for a place to put away skates and skis and are getting the old top-coat out of the mothballs and cocking their ear for the song of the first spring robin that they'd better button up their overcoats and order another ton of coal.

Because this "hot spell," now going into its second week, is weather's biggest joker of the year. It is a smile with a leer, a shriek of laughter backed with insidious intent. It is the inevitable, annual January thaw. It comes as surely as Indian summer or April showers, and yet is almost always a surprise.

The biggest danger from this joke of nature, is, of course, the common cold, which gets its grip when the muffler and galoshes are discarded and puts on a strangle hold in the form of gripe or flu when the snow returns. Minor troubles include bad fog, interruption of winter sports and mud.

Enemies of winter are feeling their first hopeful twinges of spring fever but don't be fooled and don't do anything rash if that flannel underwear is beginning to itch; the worst is yet to come.

Politics We Have With Us

IT might be a good stunt to amend "The poor always have with you" to read "... and like-wise the politicians." Then the relief problem, which it's predicted will be with us always, too, could be handled realistically.

Asking for freedom from political manipulation in relief, President Roosevelt scoffs at a Republican suggestion that authority be turned over to local boards. Those who make this proposal, he says, are "either insincere or ignorant of the realities of local American politics."

They are not ignorant of realities. They know what Democrats have learned—that the political party nominally responsible for a relief policy assisting millions of voters has a tremendous advantage.

They do not believe that advantage should be reduced to the credit of one party exclusively. It unbalances the two-party system, or threatened to before the November elections. They want the advantage to be divided, which is another way of saying they want it cancelled.

There are realities of local politics, and realities of national politics. There will continue to be realities as long as there is government. The task is to keep them in balance. Relief must be decentralized, not to get it out of politics, which is impossible, but to get it out of the hands of one party exclusively, which is possible and practical.

The friends of my adversity I shall always cherish most. I can better trust those who helped to relieve the gloom of my dark hours than those who are so ready to enjoy with me the sunshine of my prosperity.—General Grant.

Roosevelt Expresses A New Philosophy Wherein He Recognizes Religion As Source Of Democracy

By WALTER LIPPMANN

REGARDLESS of the wisdom of particular measures and policies which may follow it, the message the President delivered last Wednesday may be described without rhetorical exaggeration as a landmark in the history of Western thought. It registers a change of ideas which is absolutely fundamental, a change not only in Mr. Roosevelt's own mind, but, and this is much more significant, in the minds of the great masses of men here and abroad, of whom

Mr. Lippmann is, by virtue of his office, the most representative spokesman.

The message marks the reconciliation which is now in progress, after more than a century of destructive conflict, between patriotism, freedom, democracy and religion. This conflict has divided, weakened and demoralized the whole western world to a point where it has seemed as if the foundations of civilized life were fatally undermined.

Free institutions developed in independence and upon nations as the outcome of the religious traditions of the west. Freedom, nationalism and religion are so inseparable in our civilization that when they are separated, each in itself becomes destructive or reactionary. But until very recent days, until the brutal consequence had actually been made plain, the democratic philosophy has been predominantly secular and, therefore apart from the churches, pacifist and, therefore, opposed to the army, cosmopolitan and, therefore, suspicious of the sentiment of patriotism.

In the popular philosophy which comes down to us from the 18th century it was, on the whole, assumed that religion and patriotism were opposed to freedom and democracy. This has always been the Communist doctrine. But outside the Communists, among the advanced progressives in all countries, though this belief has not been formulated as a doctrine, it has existed as a controlling principle; thus until very recently the progressive democrat was almost invariably a pacifist in favor of disarmament, an internationalist who disturbed national patriotism and a tolerator of religion who in his heart believed that science would supplant it.

THE experience of the last 20 years has disclosed the fatal weakness of this progressive democratic philosophy which came down from the 19th century. For it has been demonstrated first in central Europe and then in the democracies of western Europe that to dissociate free institutions from religion and patriotism is to render them unworkable, and, in the last analysis, defenseless. It has been shown that the final resistance to tyranny in all the totalitarian regimes has been made not by the Communist parties, for they have gone over almost as a body into the cohorts of the dictators, and not by the progressive democrats, for they have acquiesced, but by devoutly religious churchmen who alone had a conviction which made them say that resistance to tyranny is obedience to God.

It has been shown that the theologians of the churches were more discerning than the untheological liberals when they fixed their attention upon the anti-religious character of Communism and then upon the anti-religious character of Fascism as the root of the evil in those two revolutionary movements. For it has been the assault on the religious tradition of the west which has disarmed men in their resistance to tyranny; the regimented, collectivized masses of humanity are composed of individuals who have been stripped of the conviction that they are persons, not by grace of the omnipotent state but because they are made in the image of God.

This is what the President has understood and this, we may be sure, is what he meant when he said at the very beginning of his message that three institutions indispensable to Americans are challenged and that the first of these, religion, "is the source of the other two"—of democracy and international good faith. Words that resemble these have often been uttered by many democratic statesmen. But these very words in this precise order would not have been meant and would not have been understood until our own day by any progressive democratic leader or by the masses to whom he spoke. A conventional tribute to religion is an ingredient of many political speeches. But that the President, who is the most influential democratic leader in the world, should recognize religion as the source of democracy and of international good faith is not a mere matter of words; it is a fundamental reorientation in the liberal democratic outlook upon life.

This change has been in the making for some time and the President is reflecting faithfully a movement of opinion throughout the world. It can be observed most easily in France, where the capacity to think and feel lucidly is perhaps more highly developed and more general than in any other people. Last summer, as the crisis which culminated at Munich was approaching, a most remarkable thing occurred in France; there was a reconciliation between the parties of the left, which have been violently anti-clerical since the French revolution, and the Catholic church; and there was a reconciliation of the labor movement, which has been pacifist and anti-national, with the army and with the nationalistic leaders.

FOR the first time since the foundation of the French republic the democratic masses, the army and the church were not morally divided. And it was this profound union, into which only certain plutocratic elements did not enter, that explains the collapse of the general strike and the recovery which France is making from the shock of the Munich disaster. The same general tendency is at work in all countries, in the feeling of the great masses and in the minds of the leaders of thought. The President's message reflects it admirably and never before has he displayed so fully his gift for discerning and expressing the underlying tides of opinion which will determine the course of events.

He has seen what the democratic masses have begun to see everywhere, that if they are "to breathe the free air of a free country" it is not enough to denounce tyranny and oppression abroad; it is necessary to bring to an end, fundamentally and decisively, those deep and ancient antagonisms within the democratic nations which have paralyzed and disorganized them in their conflict with revolution at home and with aggression from abroad.

And so, whereas formerly the

A Test For Congress

By PRESTON GROVER

BEFORE congress can become as independent as once seemed possible, it must prove that national defense does not envelope such a field as the President mapped out.

On previous occasions the President has used the tactics of putting congress on the spot. His message to the 1939 session was right in harmony with the earlier procedures. He included under the program of national defense not only the usual business of building ships and guns but also virtually the whole new deal program. In the President's view, labor legislation, stock exchange regulation, power development, social security—all these now become a part of the program of unifying the country internally against outside dangers.

Observers here agreed it was a smart move for the President, harassed as he is by threat of a recalcitrant congress. Let congress kick up its heels, said the President, but whatever it does, it will be responsible to the people for any damage to the national defense.

ALREADY congress has begun to kick up its heels, of course, for the President's move has been hinted for weeks past. It is not necessarily an impregnable position for him to take, but it is a strategic one, most authorities agree.

The President has been accused of making every problem an emergency in order to compel acceptance of his own plans for meeting it. It has worked often. In the instances of the court bill and the reorganization bill it failed. In the beginning of his administration the President used the serious emergency of the collapse of business. He said democracy itself was at stake, that the three-part government was on trial, just as he says it now. In his inaugural address on that exciting March day in 1933 he expressed hope that congress would respond to the needs of the hour and do the necessary.

"But in the event that the congress shall fail... I shall ask the congress for the one remaining instrument to meet the crisis—broad executive power to wage a war against the emergency, as great as the power that would be given to me if we were in fact invaded by a foreign foe."

CONGRESS acted fast, with an acquiescence in presidential recommendations not equalled in peace time history.

The gold emergency came in 1934, and the President obtained authority to nationalize gold.

The condition of the underprivileged became in his view an urgent case in 1935 and congress had to do something about social-security, about housing, and about tax reform that would take away some of the profits that concentrated power in few hands. As he put it, congress had to act or face the onus of bad faith with the downtrodden.

The President's overwhelming victory of 1936 was accompanied by a comforting rise in prosperity. Congress, overwhelmingly Democratic, had not ground for an independent position until the court bill backed. That came in 1937. Since then the trend toward an independent congress has been widely observed. The trend was emphasized by returns of the last election.

Now the President challenges this independent congress to act on its own hook—but warns it to deal cautiously with anything endangering the nation's defense in the face of greedy totalitarian nations. If congress worsens the relationship between employer and labor, if it cuts spending enough to start a new recession, if it unsteadies the credit and banking structure—if it hurts any new deal enterprise it impairs the national defense, says the President, as much as if it interfered with armaments themselves.

It was an off-center play that will test congressional mettle.

The Army Takes Over

Hopkins' Departure From WPA May Help Clear Relief Air In Congress

ONE truly fundamental change in the relief situation as it comes up once more is that members of congress now can look at the problem with a greater degree of objectivity, without the need of damaging or defending Harry Hopkins.

The change may bring calmer thinking in the search for solutions, even though the actual facts of relief are as difficult to dissolve as ever.

However just or unjust, a great many congressmen have suspected at least a trace of social workers' racket in the setup, and Harry Hopkins, himself a social worker and chief of the WPA until recently, has come to symbolize whatever was faulty in it. The report of the senate elections committee scolded the WPA for what went on in Tennessee and Kentucky during the primaries.

Those are only two states. Senators and representatives from other states have complaints, most of which they were eager to lay to Hopkins as he was the one public figure connected with WPA whose name meant something in the public prints.

NOW Hopkins is out of relief and in the cabinet. Replacing him is Col. Francis C. Harrington, an army engineer. So far as this correspondent's recollection goes, there is no branch of the government in which congress places such trust as in the army engineers. Probably President Roosevelt knew that too, Congress has voted scores of millions for flood control and most members have been content simply to know that the army engineers had placed an okay on the expenditure.

As Col. Harrington took over, WPA rolls were near an all time peak at above 3,000,000. While WPA workers were moving into private industry at the rate of 200,000 a month, others were displaced and coming on the rolls at the rate of 300,000 a month as congress met.

Few, if any, congressmen advocate outright termination of relief.

But part and parcel of the relief theory has been that the expenditures primed the pump of industry, creating more private jobs. This has been one of the arguments in support of maintaining the costlier work relief in contrast with the half-as-costly direct relief. One group of administration and congressional advisors still argues for continued pump priming but others, noting the persisting high unemployment levels, now doubt that it works so well.

MORE than ever a search is being made to incite an increase in the national income from the present $50,000,000,000 level to something between $50,000,000,000 and $100,000,000,000 where it is considered certain the demand for help would be so great that only the utterly unemployable would remain on relief.

That is why, as the relief problem comes up for its ninth year, congress is looking to other ways of meeting the situation.

Already formal or informal attention has been given to such approaches as:

Tax reduction rewards to companies with employ profit sharing plans.

Similar awards to companies scrapping old machines for new, with consequent stimulation of the heavy goods industries.

Complete elimination of the corporate surplus profits tax.

Reduction of upper bracket income taxes with a view to bestirring enterprises to undertake new ventures.

Elimination of tax-exempt securities to block this "escape" for lazy or nervous capital.

But when congress ends there will be a WPA—with money to spend.

Ohio Anecdotes

PONTIAC, history tells us, was an inveterate enemy of the American settlers. However, his son, She-ge-na-ba, proved friendly.

When Ezekiel Field, son of Col. John Field, was taken captive and condemned to die in 1775, it was through She-ge-na-ba's efforts that he was saved and restored to his friends. For this act, Pontiac's son was presented with a fine gun by Indian Agent Butler during the peace conference at Fort Pitt in October, 1775.

In addition to She-ge-na-ba who represented the Ottawas, many other important chiefs were present—Capt. Pipe, Delaware chief, The Shade, a Shawnee, and Gladstone of the Mingos. All pledged utmost friendship and aid in case of war. All save Pontiac's son, not long after, accepted the summons of Hamilton, the Britisher, to go on the warpath against the Americans.

Tax 'Em

Levy On Unmarried Ladies Over 23 Advocated To Boost The Matrimony Rate Over United States

By DAMON RUNYON

IT is our contention that congress should impose a heavy tax on all unmarried ladies over 23 years of age. Some hold the taxation should start at 20, but we think it is only fair to give the ladies a few years in which to look around.

We have reached the conclusion that the whole trouble with the matrimonial code in this country is the theory that the lady is supposed to be the pursued and the gentleman the pursuer. The only way you can change this code is make the ladies themselves do the pursuing. We believe the tax we suggest would accomplish that purpose.

There are millions of gentlemen in the United States who would like to get married but do not know how to go about it. In most cases they are too bashful to walk right up to an eligible lady and ask her hand. Under the code set forth above the lady feels she has to wait on the asking or be deemed bold and forward. So what happens?

So the gentleman becomes an ornery old bachelor and the lady gets herself a job and forgets about matrimony. The nation loses a splendid team of home builders who would have added materially to tax collections over a period of years, perhaps to the population also.

We say that if an unmarried lady knew her single-ness would subject her to a tax she would speedily take an inarticulate swain in hand and make him talk up. There would be nothing any more immodest in this proceeding than there is in compliance with any other law.

YOU SEE, down the years there has been an impression in this and other countries that the reason matrimony is retarded is the unwillingness of the gentleman to enter into the married state. This impression is so firmly fixed that in some countries there is a special tax on bachelors. The same kind of tax has occasionally been suggested for the United States.

We would not object to a tax on bachelors if we thought their bachelorhood was because of reluctance to accept the duties and responsibilities of matrimony. We are convinced that 95 percent of them are wholly blameless. We believe that for every unmarried lady in the United States there are at least six gentlemen willing to marry them if they knew how to handle the matter. They are stopped by the ladies' stern adherence to the aforesaid code.

The average gentleman has more of an inferiority complex than the average lady. He is easily overawed by her. The necessary words may frequently tremble on the tip of his tongue but he is afraid to say them lest he be deemed presumptuous in seeking possession of the beauty and brilliance that he sees in her. As long as the lady insists on standing coyly under the code, a gentleman like that is never going to get anywhere.

We claim that if the lady were wearing the taxable age for unmarried ladies, she would have that gentleman up before the person in less time than it takes to say "I do." Then the government would have another going concern among its resources. There should be no unmarried ladies or gentlemen beyond, say, 25 years of age in any country, if only for their governmental value.

AS an economic proposition, matrimony is good for a nation. A single gentleman wastes time that might be usefully employed. So does a single lady. In fact, we think a single lady wastes more time than a single gentleman.

Oddly enough, she wastes much of that time fixing herself up to be attractive to some single gentleman and then signally fails to make the most of his attraction because she keeps thinking that the code forbids her taking the initiative. So right there between the two of them we have a terrible waste of time.

Under the law we have suggested a lady would have no hesitancy in saying, "Look here, Sam, you must save me from the tax collector." Any gentleman with an ounce of chivalry in him would probably agree and then they could get married. He would have to hop out and start hustling and forget about standing around with the boys. Thus his time would be conserved and so would her's, because then there would be no great point to her fixing herself up to be attractive.

If you think our figures about the number of gentlemen in this country who would like to get married are exaggerated, we might refer you to Gov. A. Harry Moore of New Jersey, who recently got a letter from a widow who said she was looking for "a kind American" for a husband.

The governor made the letter public and the last we heard he had received 51 replies from gentlemen eager to take the lady up. Of course a widow has some advantage over ladies who never have been married. A gentleman takes it for granted she can cook.

Among Our Souvenirs

By Truman Twill

SOUVENIRS are a miniature birch bark canoe from Ontario with "Greetings From Moose River" burned on the side, a program from a football game at the state university, a glass paper weight containing a picture of Niagara Falls and a copper bracelet made by Indians in Mexico.

They are by humans saying "Elk Lake," "Pike's Peak Or Bust," "Excuse Our Dust," windshield stickers notifying the world that the occupants of the car are visiting Florida and campaign buttons belatedly advising Americans to "Keep Cool With Coolidge."

They are picture postcard folders of Martinique, dried sea horses, chunks of rock from Glacier National park, a seashell from the Pacific ocean, a bottle of water from the river Jordan and a wooden comb carved by the Do-Funny Indians of South America.

They are a newspaper from London during the Munich crisis, a pair of silver plated ice tongs to commemorate a happy summer of strenuous exercise, a gold football commemorating the happy fall which followed the happy summer, and a dance program for the Junior prom in high school.

They are a pair of baby shoes, a letter from a well known author, a stuffed fish which has to be kept in the cellar, a bundle of old love letters which seem to get more and more pointless as the years go by, a picture of the old gang at a masquerade and a pamphlet telling about Mount Vernon.

They are a silk robe which someone brought back from the Philippines, a picture of Cousin Elmer taken on top of the Empire State building, a splinter from a goal post, a miniature of Plymouth Rock, a strip of wampum from the Indians in the southwest and a pipe from England.

They are a snapshot of the nursery where the Dionne quintuplets live, a menu card from a night club in New York City, a pair of beaded moccasins, assorted mooseheads, deerheads, etc., a bowl of coins picked up by Uncle Abner the time he went to China and a cane made of the backbone of a shark.

They are everything in the world which has no particular purpose, except to remind the possessor they came from some distant place or from some special occasion. Souvenirs are responsible for 95 percent of the world's junk—but we couldn't do without them.

YOUNG SELECTED AS NEW HEAD OF EAST END GROUP

Civic League Holds Annual Meeting In Horace Mann School Monday Night

Fred F. Young, local real estate agent, was elected president of the East End Civic League at the annual meeting Monday night in the Horace Mann school building.

Clarence Reagle was made vice president, Roy Thompson was re-elected secretary, and C. E. Owen was made treasurer. Mr. Thompson formerly held the combined offices of secretary-treasurer. Howard Tice is the retiring president.

Principal discussion at the session concerned the Columbian park ice rink sponsored by the league.

Report On Ice Rink

Mr. Thompson, chairman of the ice skating committee, announced that $109 has been received from the sale of season tickets for the pond.

The average attendance for the three best days, Dec. 29 and Jan. 1, was 375, he stated.

The Ohio Power Co. donated and set the poles for the new flood lighting system recently installed. The only charge for the service was for the wire and other fixtures used, the report stated. Mr. Thompson also requested that some member of the club be appointed as the regular supervisor of the pond.

An official is needed to keep the surface of the ice in good condition, supervise the sale of tickets, and direct the actions of the skaters, he stated.

Members of the ice skating committee tonight will meet with Councilman Bert Goodballet in the city hall for a discussion of possible means of moving the trolley car recently donated by the traction company for use as a shelter house at the skating pond.

The trolley has a gross weight of 6,000 pounds and presents a problem to the club which finds suitable moving equipment unavailable.

Officers decided to use excess funds secured through the skating rink for support of other athletic activities during the coming summer.

Discuss Amusement License

Members suggested the application for an amusement license for use in connection with the sale of tickets for the skating pond but no definite action was taken.

Newly elected officers gave a speech of thanks in appreciation of their election in which they predicted continued success for the league as it enters its sixth year of service to the community. Each expressed optimistic views for the coming year.

Retiring officers thanked members for cooperation during the past year and commended the selection of new officers.

Following the regular business session members joined in informal discussion of current problems.

The next meeting of the league will be held Feb. 13 at the Horace Mann school in charge of the new president, Mr. Young.

May Be Treacherous

For persons of unstable personality they may be treacherous. But for level-headed, responsible individuals, whose insomnia is based on worry about business or illness, an occasional night of sleeplessness is a life saver. They may affect animals badly, but, as a London doctor writes in a book on insomnia, "A guinea pig never saw his son lying at death's door, and a rabbit never had a letter from a banker about the overdraft."

Then—as another form of treatment—the plan of relaxation advocated by Dr. Jacobson in his book, You Can Sleep Well, may work for some. Let all the muscles of the body relax—the eye muscles, the speech muscles, all the external muscles of the legs, arms, back and neck. The trouble is that this is just another sheep-counting stunt. While you are relaxing you are constantly wondering when you are going to sleep.

And it is worry that is the cause of most insomnia—especially worry about going to sleep. If you can rise above that, your insomnia will do you no harm, and is likely to disappear.

INSOMNIA In Man Never Complete, Has Graduations

Psychologists, Physiologists Find Sound Sleep Is Not Necessary For Health

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

COMPLETE insomnia, as we hint at the end of yesterday's article, never occurs. Sleep is a necessary function of the body, as necessary as the liver. If the liver is removed, death occurs. If sleep is removed, death is just as inevitable.

Psychologists and physiologists alike tell us that long, sound sleep at nights is not necessary for perfect health.

But there are graduations of insomnia. For one man the necessary function of sleep may be fulfilled in three hours, and the rest of the night he is staring wide awake. For another, naps all through the 24 may make up a quota of six or seven hours sleep, but most of the night is wakeful. For practical purposes, insomnia may be defined as inability to sleep through the night. And for all the reassurances of the psychologists, it is an extremely disagreeable and even alarming symptom. We like to sleep when all the world is quiet and asleep—insomnia and loneliness go hand in hand.

Fear Of Insanity

The fear of insanity is one of the most depressing features of the anxiety about insomnia. It is by all accounts an unfounded fear.

"I have yet to see a patient," writes a physician of Guy's hospital, London, "whose mental disorder could fairly be attributed to sleeplessness."

There are different kinds of insomnia. One person will fall asleep soon after going to bed, and wake up—bang!—staring wide awake, to discover it is one-thirty in the morning. There seems no possibility of any more sleep that night. Then about three or four he falls asleep again and wakes—again completely, instantly—at seven. But he has the feeling that his night has not been restful. The insomnia worries him. For such a person the best treatment is the reading lamp and the book at the side of the bed. If he dismisses worry, if he does not try to court sleep consciously, he will fall asleep again over his book and shorten his waking period.

Then there is the insomniac who worries about getting to sleep. He tosses and counts sheep for hours, finally dozing off in the wee small hours and waking with full daylight upon him. His bad hours are the approach of bedtime. He begins to worry at nine o'clock. And he knows to his sorrow, that the more you court the elusive goddess, the more elusive she is.

The treatment of insomnia may take many forms. One is the use of hypnotic medicines. The best of these are the barbiturates, developed within the last few years. They are infinitely superior to the old hypnotic drugs that used to be used. Their names are legion—veronal, luminal, amylal, secenal, nembutal, medinal—all chemically very much alike. It is generally held that they are habit forming, but certainly not markedly so. One report shows that in the medical literature of the world there are only 400 cases of addiction to these drugs.

Rumbling Sends Brooklyn Residents Into Street

By The Associated Press.

NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—The "case of the big noise"—a recurrent rumbling from the skies that startled hundreds of Flatbush residents—left Brooklyn police with an unsolved mystery today.

Still remembering the Orson Welles Martian broadcast, the Brooklynites crowded into streets and listened to the strange roaring emerging from a cloudy sky at irregular intervals from 10:45 to 11:30 o'clock last night. Scores phoned police. Squad cars cruised about checking reports of explosions and earthquakes.

Mystified, the police reported to headquarters that the sound apparently had been confined to a relatively quiet residential area and that they had investigated and discarded rumors that it had been caused by:

(A) A roller skating rink; (B) an earthquake; (C) a blast; (D) an airplane; (E) a windstorm; (F) an amateur radio operator; (G) a lion in the Brooklyn Prospect park zoo; (H) a tidal wave; (I) the Brooklyn Dodgers.

Scientists at Fordham university said no earth shock or explosion had registered on the seismograph there. The weather bureau said there had been no thunder.

PITTSBURGH, Jan. 10.—Two tin plate manufacturers in the Pittsburgh area, employing about 3,500 workers at capacity operations, sought solution today of a technological problem by asking their help to take a wage cut.

The McKeesport Tin Plate Co. resumed operations after a Christmas holiday shutdown by calling back approximately 1,000 of its 3,000 employees, with the understanding they would agree to accept the decision of a wage conference.

The Washington, Pa., Tin Plate Co. closed down its operations pending some agreement with its 550 workers about a wage cut.

Both concerns said they could not operate in competition with the new high speed continuous mills unless the men agreed to a wage slash averaging about nine percent.

HELP 15 MILES OF KIDNEY TUBES

To Flush out Acids and Other Poisonous Waste

Doctors say your kidneys contain 15 miles of tiny tubes or filters which help to purify the blood and keep you healthy. Most people pass about 3 pints a day or about 3 pounds of waste. Frequent or scanty passages with smarting and burning shows there may be something wrong with your kidneys or bladder.

An excess of acids or poisons in your blood, when due to functional kidney disorders, may be the beginning of nagging backache, rheumatic pains, leg pains, loss of pep and energy, getting up nights, swelling, puffiness under the eyes, headaches and dizziness.

Don't wait! Ask your druggist for Doan's Pills, used successfully by millions for over 40 years. They give happy relief and will help the 15 miles of kidney tubes flush out poisonous waste from your blood. Get Doan's Pills.

For Quick Cough Relief, Mix This at Home

Saves You Much Money, and It's So Easily Mixed.

Here's an old home remedy your mother used, but, for real results, it is still one of the most effective and dependable, for coughs due to colds. Once tried, you'll swear by it.

It's no trouble. Make a syrup by stirring 2 cups granulated sugar in 1 cup water a few moments until dissolved. No cooking needed—a child could do it.

Now put 2 1/2 ounces of Pinex into a pint bottle, and add your syrup. This gives you a full pint of actually truly splendid cough medicine, and gives you about four times as much for your money. It keeps perfectly, tastes fine, and lasts a family a long time.

And you'll say it's really amazing, for quick action. You can feel it take hold instantly. It loosens the phlegm, soothes the irritated membranes, and helps clear the air passages. No cough remedy, at any price, could be more effective.

Pinex is a compound containing Norway Pine and palatable guaricol, in concentrated form, well-known for its prompt action on throat and bronchial membranes. Money refunded if it doesn't please you in every way.

FIDELITY FIGHTS ACTION TO BRING ON RECEIVERSHIP

Continues Argument To Nip Petition Filed By 16 Of Company's Investors

By The Associated Press.
WHEELING, W. Va., Jan. 10. — Judge William E. Baker ordered arguments continued in federal district court here today on the petition of the Fidelity Investment association for dismissal of a receivership action brought by a group of its contract purchasers.

Chief Counsel Austin V. Wood for the company argued yesterday the group of petitioners from the Philadelphia district of Pennsylvania held only 16 of the company's 100,000 investment loan contracts. He fixed their value at only $8,000 of the company's outstanding certificates and declared they were of insufficient value to warrant the litigation. He fixed the total at more than $34,000,000.

Lamb Requests Injunction
Edward Lamb, counsel for Alice P. Hutchinson of Toledo, O., who intervened as a defendant, asked dismissal of the receivership petition but requested an injunction to restrain the company from further business in its home office at Wheeling and several score branch offices until an audit was made.

Seymour M. Heifbron of New York, counsel for the receivership petitioners, said a receivership was necessary "because shortly there will be judgments and attachments in other states."

Wood Monday described the company sales of investment loan certificates as "the systematic saving of money through monthly deposits" and asserted West Virginia laws governing the Wheeling concern were "much more stringent than those for the banks."

Pointing out the West Virginia state auditor served also as insurance and securities commissioner he contended receivership action would require a charge collusion between the insurance commission and the company or a charge that the commissioner failed to act properly.

Wood Asks Dismissal
Wood asked dismissal of the petition, declaring it was composed of "generalities and conclusions" and that the petitioners had not asked Fidelity to satisfy their claims.

The receivership petition was based on charges of fraudulent practices against the association by the federal securities commission.

The company denied the charges but agreed to the entry of a federal court injunction to prohibit the practices.

Wood, first attorney to speak at the receivership hearing, said four of the contracts held by the petitioners had no cash surrender value.

Seven of the contracts, he said, had cash-surrender value of between $200 and $500; three had a cash-surrender value of less than $1,000; and two had a cash-surrender value of more than $1,000.

Of the two with a value of more than $1,000 he said, only one had sufficient value to place it within the jurisdiction of the federal court. He added:

"The value of not one of these contracts warrants the filing of this highly major litigation and even the sum total of all the contracts is not sufficient to warrant this expense."

CHINA PUSHES ATTACK IN HANGCHOW SECTOR

Yuhang is the extreme westward outpost of the Japanese in Chekiang province.

Fighting continued at several other points in the Hangchow sector as the Chinese sought to close in on the Chekiang capital.

On the central China front, Chinese reported they had ambushed a Japanese ammunition convoy near Yochow, 122 miles up the Yangtze river from Hankow, killing 50 men and capturing a large quantity of supplies.

AIRCRAFTS PACE MARKET'S SPURT

Brokers Hold Comeback As Of Technical Nature

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Aircrafts found a rallying tail-wind in today's stock market and, along with pivotal steels, motors, rails and specialties, posted gains of fractions to around 2 points.

Brokers thought the comeback was partly of a technical nature and speculative forces generally continued to step lightly pending a showdown in congress on the administration's relief spending program. It was pointed out, though, that business still was a bolstering market influence.

Bonds put on a quiet and selective recovery. Commodities were mixed. European securities markets did little either way.

Stocks well in front the greater part of the day included Douglas Aircraft, Sperry, Glenn Martin, United Aircraft, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, Youngstown, Chrysler, General Motors, Montgomery Ward, Sears Roebuck, Anaconda, Phelps Dodge, Westinghouse, U. S. Gypsum, U. S. Rubber and Consolidated Edison.

Reports of December merchandising distribution continued to make good reading for the analysts and served to lift favored issues in this group.

Followers of the motor stocks noted estimates from this field that retail sales of automobiles in January probably would drop between 10 and 15 percent under December.

A drop for the rails was seen in preliminary freight loadings figures for the first week of the new year which indicated an increase over the like 1938 period.

TRAFFIC SAFETY DRIVE EXPLAINED

Grant P-T A. Hears Officials Urge Greater Caution

Safety-Service Director James R. Hall and Mayor Lee Copenhaver carried the city's safety campaign into the school Monday night when they spoke before the Grant st. Parent-Teachers association.

Mr. Hall stated it was their purpose to cooperate with all parent-teacher organizations in the city to promote safety of school children. Mayor Copenhaver said he hoped a larger police appropriation would be provided so that police protection could be provided at schools when children were let out.

An open discussion followed the talks in which several members pointed out that the greatest danger to children at the Grant school was from speeders coming down the St. Clair ave. hill.

Mr. Hall proposed to paint stop signs on the pavement near the school and to put an officer near there several times to arrest speeders.

In conjunction with the safety program, the pupils of the fifth grade taught by Miss Jean Hobbs gave an alphabetical poem on safety rules. During the business meeting a motion was passed that the association should cooperate with the city officials in every way possible to promote the campaign.

Refreshments were served by Mrs. Clark McCoy and her committee, Mrs. Paul Brant, Mrs. William Taylor, and Mrs. Wilbur Pittenger. The next meeting will be Feb. 13. This will be an all-pupil program and the men will have charge of refreshments.

E. Froesch; and a playlet, "Woof Woof," by pupils of the third and fourth grades taught by Miss Thelma Ritchie and Miss Kathryn Parsons.

The business session was in charge of the president, C. Walter Ashbaugh. A committee was appointed to investigate means of procuring a radio and telephone system in the school. The committee, headed by Walter Emerson, includes Ray Parker, Paul Hutchman and Neal Shope. INSTITUTE FEARS NEW WORLD WHEAT CRISIS

By The Associated Press.
ROME, Jan. 10.—The International Institute of Agriculture today warned that the world faced another wheat crisis, even more serious than that of 1928, due to a mounting grain surplus.

The Institute estimated exportable wheat supplies would be 1,140,000,000 bushels by July 31, 1939, and that the world import demand would be 540,000,000 bushels.

The report concluded that the only solution is "to restrict production by means of reducing the area sown" but it recognized, however, that "economic administrative, political and constitutional difficulties" obstruct such an international agreement.

Kent Residents Cheer Davey On Return: Former Governor To Resume Business Duties

By The Associated Press.

KENT, O., Jan. 10. — Martin L. Davey was just another Kent businessman today.

His fellow townsmen welcomed the former governor "home" last night after his arrival from Columbus, where he turned over the reins of state government to his Republican successor, Gov. John W. Bricker.

"It's the honeymoon period for the new governor, but I wish him well," Davey told a demonstrative Kent opera house crowd, estimated at more than 2,000. Then he added: "He's got a lot of hell ahead of him."

Of the Bricker inaugural ceremonies, Davey remarked that he "never saw the faces of so many job hunters."

"The army of occupation has taken over Columbus, while I led away the army of evacuation," said Davey.

Charles W. Seiberling, Akron industrialist, said in an address: "When a person goes away and a demonstration is made, that's politics. When a crowd like tonight's welcomes him home, that's friendship."

Davey has announced that he would resume his duties as head of the Davey Tree Expert Co.

Mooney Kept Finger On Labor Movements Despite Imprisonment

Freed Man Fears, However That Diet In Prison May Have Ruined Stomach

By The Associated Press.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—Twenty-two years of imprisonment left no mark on Tom Mooney, he said today, unless prison food wrecked his stomach.

"I have kept pace with the world," the 56-year-old labor leader said. "Mentally and spiritually I have developed about the same as I would have outside."

"Whether I would have the same physical disorders if I hadn't been in prison is problematical. I don't believe I would."

Those close to him laughed at suggestions the labor movement had changed so much Mooney was left far behind during the years he was imprisoned from the 1916 San Francisco Preparedness day bombing.

"He is probably the best informed man in the United States on the labor movement, perhaps in the world at large," said George T. Davis, Mooney's attorney and companion since he was pardoned Saturday.

There was no questioning Mooney's high spirits. He smiled almost continually and joked frequently, but the jest went out of his voice when he talked about the "starch poisoning" he said he got from the penitentiary diet. He was repeatedly sent to the prison hospital with gall bladder and stomach trouble.

Just what imprisonment has done to his body, he will learn in Stanford hospital where he will spend Wednesday and Thursday while Dr. Leo Eleosser gives him a thorough examination.

Mooney talks over a national (Columbia) network at 9:20 p. m., eastern standard time, tonight, attends his own union meeting for the first time in 22 years and then enters Stanford hospital.

Scene Near Alexandria

By TEMPLE MANNING
EGYPT is in for a banner travel year, and anyone going there for the first time or the fifth will always thrill to the antiquity, the lure, the beauty, the age-old charm that is Egypt. There is so much to see and to do, so much losing oneself in the past, so much admiring of the quick tempo of modern Egyptian life that it is a real travel treat.

Many travelers rush through Alexandria on their way to Cairo, never giving a thought to the wonders of this ancient and historical city that manages to be very, very modern. For Alexandria is an all-year-round sports and social center, whereas similar activity in Cairo is confined to the winter season.

Elaborate Clubs
Smart residents of Alexandria spend their summer mornings sunning themselves on the yellow sands off Stanley Bay beach, and their winter afternoons at the Alexandria and Semouha Sporting clubs. The latter is a very elaborate affair, occupying a stretch of reclaimed ground along the bay front. It is a very comprehensive country club, including a race track, a polo field, swimming pool, squash, racquet and tennis courts, golf course, restaurants and tea garden. The Alexandria Sporting club is equally luxurious. How's that for old Egypt?

Travelers arriving at Cleopatra's city enter by way of the West Port, the ancient East Port so famous in history having been abandoned years ago. But essentially the picture remains the same as in the old descriptions—the bright blue sky, with the dazzling sun shining down on lovely white buildings. The Ras El Time palace, with its marble steps, descends to the water's edge, surrounded by lovely gardens. The beautiful Corniche Road, a replica of the famous drive along the Riviera, begins at the palace and skirts the sea front.

Nicknamed "Little Paris," Alexandria, nicknamed "Little Paris," is very proud of this waterfront drive, as well it might. The visitor is soon taken for a drive, then is shown the new stadium, built on the site of the Hippodrome of the Ptolemies.

It is an experience to stroll by the banks of the Mahmoudieh canal to the Nourah Gardens, whose smooth, green lawns are shaded by immense palms. The zoo is in the gardens; few zoos have such a setting. The suburbs of Alexandria are palm fringed, green and lovely. In times gone by villas and entertainment grounds, established by the water some three miles from the city, attracted the old Egyptians. Now fashionable resorts are replacing ancient centers, but in the main life there during the summer months is much as it must have been centuries ago.

An opera season of importance, symphony concerts, brilliant social clubs and festivities all point the way to a new Alexandria. The star of this ancient and wonderful city, after being dimmed, is again in the ascendency.

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, Jan. 11

THERE are auguries of sudden and rather drastic movements on this day, according to the lunar aspects. Properly organized and put into execution, this activity may bring unexpected or unusual advantages of profound and lasting duration. It might apply to the personal and cultural rather than business life, as the social, domestic and emotional or higher proclivities are under pleasant stimuli. However, there may be some depressing situation to hamper or nullify very happy prospects. There are signs of much celebration or jollification.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a very active year, in which matters will move at an unusually high tempo. Sudden and drastic moves may be spurred by either social, domestic or emotional urges, with the young and romantic particularly stirred. Nevertheless, there may be a setback, loss or disappointment to cast a shadow on a rather festive occasion.

A child born on this day may have a very deep, studious but aggressive nature. While it may be potent and resourceful in a practical way, it may also have artistic, cultural and possibly metaphysical talents.

NEW YEAR'S LOVE

by Angela Lorden

The Characters
Noel Marchand, a beautiful young actress
Allan Collings, the man she loves
David Norris, her fiancé.
Yesterday: David tells Noel he is jealous of Allan.

CHAPTER 23
Beautiful Vagueness
Noel's angry argument with David was one emotional outburst too many for her distraught nerves. She had told him defiantly: "I love Allan Collings!"

And now she burst into hysterical weeping. David for a moment seemed moved by her distress but his anger at her was not completely abated. He, too, seemed driven by some force of resentment, stronger than his own reasoning. He had turned white at her significant words.

"Noel, don't be a fool! You're dramatizing a silly infatuation. I don't believe you!"
Was he saying that to save his own pride, or to convince Noel? For he went on, in a more conciliatory tone:
"I understand you so well, my dear. His accident was appealed to your romantic imagination. And you're unstrung by the unfortunate experience."

David took Noel by the shoulders, not in an affectionate way, but as though he would force her to see the situation as he was presenting it. He looked at her long and searchingly, shook her body slightly. She tried to pull away. His hands were gripping her tightly.

"You're not the person who'd waste your affections on a man who didn't care about you! Have you forgotten he's marrying Mrs. Schuyler?"

That stung deep into Noel's consciousness. She tore away from his hold finally with a fierce resentful gesture.

"You're trying to hurt me as much as you can, aren't you?" she asked bitterly.

At David's next words, "Have you spared me, Noel?" she cringed. Her whole attitude changed. The tears stopped flowing. Her eyes rested on his tortured face. He was suffering over her just as she did over Allan. Everything was a mess! Why had she made that crazy impetuous confession?

"I'm sorry!" She appeared to wilt as she said it. The rebellion was out of her. Her lips drooped in despair. "I'm terribly, terribly sorry, David. More than I can tell you! But, at last you know the truth."

"We won't talk about it any more tonight," was David's final decision. He didn't touch her, except with his eyes that now, with the fury gone out of them, seemed to caress her. "It's been unfortunate, this whole quarrel—the first one we've ever had. Noel, I'm sorry, too, that it happened."

"Soon, we'll have forgotten all about it," He hesitated before he added, "When we're away from all this."

After he'd gone, Noel realized he was still counting on their marriage—with all that she'd told him. How can he? she thought, wondering. Asking herself if she would take Allan on similar terms, she was very much afraid that she would.

If Noel had any embarrassment about seeing David again, he made it easy for her. No word about Allan, no mention of their argument!

"I'll be out of town for the week-end, my dear," was all that he said.

Out Of Danger
Allan improved steadily. He was out of danger! It was joyous news for Noel. Since her quarrel with David, in a penitential way, she had not gone out to Westbury. Her daily telephone calls to Mrs. Marchand kept her posted.

"Dr. White says you can see him tomorrow if it's convenient for you to come out here," Mrs. Marchand suggested on Saturday.

Convenient? Noel said she'd be there. Nothing would have kept her away, though she knew there was no wisdom in such a decision. Allan was thinner and looked so awfully weak when she was admitted to his room. The swelling on his lips had gone down, the cut was healing.

"Noel, I'm so glad you came." His voice was weak and thin, too. Without moving his body, flat on the bed, he stretched out his hand, holding hers firmly.

All Noel could say was "Hello, Allan," as she smiled down at him. She wanted to take his bandaged head and cradle it against her breast. She wanted to cry, too, gazing down at him.

"Sit down, bring your chair to the bed," He reached for her hand again, as she sat close to him.

"You gave us quite a shock, for a while." It sounded insane as she said it. She was guarding her words carefully.

"Mother told me how good you were, Noel."

Each time he said her name, he gave it a warm, personal meaning. She loved hearing it from his lips. "It was pretty bad for her, I'm lucky, I guess, from what they tell me."

"And now you'll be better soon, and out of the hospital," Noel was managing a forced cheerfulness.

"Were you in this room when I came back from the operation or did I imagine it?" Allan's voice had a dreamy quality.

"Yes, I was here, Allan. Don't you remember, you spoke to me?" "Did you call me dear? And did you mean it, like that, Noel?" His clasp on her hand tightened. His fingers were pressing into her knuckles. She couldn't meet his eyes—they were asking so many things. She tried to focus her glance on the bandage round his forehead.

"Did you, Noel?" he asked again.

"Yes," the answer was a faint whisper.

"Say it now," he pleaded, forcing her eyes to meet his.

She tried to laugh it off. The effort was a failure.

"Dear," she said lightly.

"Not like that." Awkwardness passed. She bent her head toward him—she had to steel herself against touching his lips then. "Allan, my dear." All her feeling for Allan went into the words.

"Noel, darling!" He said that again, too. He caught her hand to his face, kissed the palm, held it there against his lips.

Noel was so thrilled she couldn't think of anything except that Allan was calling her darling!

"All the time I've been lying here, I thought about you, Noel. In the darkness I dreamed you were in the room and during the days I waited for you to come."

"I came— you knew I would." Her heart was bursting with happiness. It would only last for this heavenly moment—she couldn't think further ahead.

"You're so wonderful—I've known that a long time," Noel held her breath then. What did it mean? He was in love with Elaine Schuyler. He was marrying Elaine! Why was he saying this to her now? Now, when it was too late!

Perhaps it would have told her the meaning—but someone knocked on the door. Noel pulled her hand away, sat up straight in the chair. She tried to compose herself, to still the wild beating of her heart.

"I'm Dying Now!"
"Come in," Allan's voice was husky. The summons held an echo of his emotion.

"Oh, my dear, I'm sorry! I didn't know you had visitors!" Elaine in a soft blue suit with a gay little gray hat walked into the room. Her arms were filled with garden flowers. She was a beautiful picture as she stood there. A patch of adhesive tape covered part of her chin. She wore it like a decoration. Noel stood up.

"Good afternoon, Mrs. Schuyler," she said formally, making way at the bedside for Elaine.

"Hello, Miss Marchand. Have you been cheering our invalid?" Elaine laid the flowers on the foot of the bed and with a proprietary gesture stooped over Allan, kissing his bandaged forehead.

"My poor dear," she murmured soothingly. "I'll never forgive myself for doing this to you. I'll do penance for the rest of my life." She turned then to Noel:

"I'd have died if anything happened to Allan," she said dramatically.

I'm dying now, Noel thought, watching you there with him. She moved toward the door.

"Don't go yet," Allan said, his voice so urgent that even Elaine looked up in surprise. Her manner was frosty.

"If Miss Marchand has to leave, we mustn't detain her, Allan," she reminded him.

Noel came back to the bed. She didn't offer to shake hands with the patient. "Goodbye, Allan. I'm so glad you're recovering so quickly."

"You'll come back tomorrow?" he asked, pleading with his eyes and his voice.

"Yes, I'll come back tomorrow," Noel looked at Elaine. "We must pamper the invalid," she said smilingly and left them together.

But the next day her flowers came instead, with a note:

"Dear Allan, I wanted to visit you today but I'm detained in town with business I can't postpone. I'll see you soon, Noel."

Those few moments with Allan in the hospital room were a beautiful vagueness she clung to. "I'm giving it undue significance," she said several times. But she couldn't forget his "Darling" to her. She'd remember it the rest of her life. Elaine had brought reality in with her—Noel couldn't dismiss Elaine from her conjecturing.

"I'm having costumes made for Rita," Swannstrom told Noel when she went to the theater. "She can't wear your type of clothes."

"Rita knows her she's taking my place?" As Noel said it she realized that in a few weeks she'd be leaving the play—to marry David. "Do the others know, too?"

"Not yet—I asked Rita to keep the secret for a while."

Noel knew that was too much to ask of Rita. So she said to Gerald during the second act intermission, "I'm leaving the play in three weeks, Gerald."

"I should say I'm sorry to hear it—but we all know you're marrying Norris. He's a swell guy, Noel. I hope you'll be happy."

Noel's eyes filled. "I hate the thought of leaving all this," she offered weakly.

Gerald accepted her explanation. "But you'll have the real thing, Noel; this is only make-believe."

masses to whom the President speaks held that social reform could be achieved only by the class struggle, in this message he tells them, what they already have begun to realize, that the class struggle must stop if the masses are to improve their lot. Where formerly they believed that patriotism and the national defense were merely the instruments of reaction, he tells them, because they are ready to hear it, that these things are the indispensable protection of democracy. Where formerly they believed that religion is either negligible and antiquated, or that it is, as Communists say, "the opiate of the people," he tells them that on the religious tradition of the west, and on no other foundation, can human liberty be maintained.

And so this message expresses a philosophy, as new to the President as it is new to the world that heard it, a philosophy which formulates in outline the positive answer of the west to the forces which threaten to destroy the western world. One would greatly underestimate its significance in thinking of it only as a response to the challenge of Nazism. It is in a much more important sense a response to those forces of moral disintegration which Communism, Fascism and Nazism inherit and exploit.

It is an event in modern history, comparable, so to speak, with the Communist manifesto of 1848. For in that manifesto there were anticipated and propounded the principal ideas which have been dissolving the structure of western society; this message contains within it, by implication and in embryo, the outline of that reconstruction in their moral philosophy which the democracies must undertake if they are to survive.

Sundown Stories

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

The Ceremony

AT FIRST it seemed as though "tomorrow" would never come and then here it was in no time at all. Everyone was getting ready for the wedding.

Mr. Johnny Penguin had brushed his feathers. He looked very handsome and proud and fine. Miss Penguin had made every attempt to look her best and she had succeeded very well. The Puddle Muddlers were very much excited to think that a wedding was to take place—and a wedding which no one had thought about at all—particularly between two penguins they had never known would come to visit Puddle Muddle.

"May I be best man, or best duck?" quacked a little Yellow Beak. "I can carry the pebble which is what you say the penguins use as an engagement ring."

"You can carry it," cawed Christopher Columbus Crow, "but whether you may carry it is another thing. It all depends on what the penguins have to say."

"I'd like to have Yellow Beak as best man, or best duck," squeaked Mr. Johnny Penguin. "And may I ask if we are to be allowed to share the pond with the ducks and make our home there for the winter?"

"You're more than welcome," quacked Mrs. Quacko.

"Why don't you just say they're welcome—more than welcome is silly," cackled Top Notch.

"It's not silly," returned Mrs. Quacko. "It shows how eager I am to share my pond with them."

Now the ceremony was about to take place. There hadn't been a wedding in Puddle Muddle for ages and ages—not since Jolly Bear had met Honey Bear. It was a pity the bears could not be with them now. But Willy Nilly was standing before the penguins and he was marrying them. All the Puddle Muddlers were on hand.

The Penguins both seemed quite fluttery and nervous, but then so did Mrs. Quacko. It was an exciting, fluttery time!

ASHLAND SOPH LOOMS AS NEW RUNNING ACE

DUKE, RICE TRIUMPH IN 'Y' CAGE LEAGUE

By The Associated Press.
ASHLAND, O., Jan. 10.—Ashland college, hungry for athletic glory, is predicting great things for Gilbert Dodds, its 20-year-old sophomore distance runner.

Dodds made his debut in major track competition in the New Orleans Sugar Bowl Jan. 1 and forced Don Lash, America's premier two-miler, to stage a strong finish to beat him to the tape.

After the race Lash told George Donaghy, Dodds' coach: "The kid had me scared. I didn't think I'd be able to catch him."

From Mile-Runners Glenn Cunningham came the prediction the Ashland runner would become one of the nation's best.

Dodds had never competed in the two-mile event before going to the Sugar Bowl. His workouts here are makeshift and he has no chance to match strides with another runner.

His track career began at Falls City (Neb.) High school, where his speed attracted the attention of Lloyd Hahn, former Olympic star and holder of numerous American records. Hahn coached him through high school and Dodds went undefeated, setting state school records in the mile and two miles.

Lash won the Sugar Bowl race in 9:23.3, beating Dodds by about five yards. The Ohioan's time was nearly a minute faster than the two-mile record of the Ohio conference.

Dodds, who lives in Mexico, Ind., is studying for the ministry. He's working his way through school as a bell boy at an Ashland hotel, where guests get speedy service.

FANS GIVE APOSTOLI NOD IN RETURN BOUT

By The Associated Press.
NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Much as they admired Billy Conn's fighting in his local debut against Fred Apostoli last Friday night, a majority of the critics think the Pittsburgh beauty made a mistake in signing right back for a 15-round return engagement on Feb. 10.

They believe that Apostoli, though again conceding some 10 pounds, will be able to wear Conn down over the longer run and beat his ears off toward the finish. Apostoli, as tough and durable as they come, was carrying the battle to his 21-year-old rival in the closing rounds, the other night, slugging away steadily while Conn was fighting only in spurts.

The pair have signed what is known as a light-heavyweight contract for the return, which means they may weigh up to 175 pounds so far as the state athletic commission is concerned. However, Conn again has made a "gentleman's agreement" to scale 165, "give or take a pound." Apostoli is a natural 160-pounder.

The consensus seems to be that Conn, having made such a sensational Madison Square Garden debut with a unanimous decision over Apostoli, should pitch immediately into the light-heavyweights and leave Apostoli strictly alone.

Apostoli is a good man to dodge the second time, as such scrappers as Glen Lee and Young Corbett III will be glad to testify.

SEVEN CLASS A TEAMS REMAIN UNDEFEATED IN OHIO CAGE RACE

First Setbacks Given Canton And Massillon

New Philly, Bridgeport Keep Records Untarnished

By FRITZ HOWELL
Associated Press Sports Writer
COLUMBUS, O., Jan. 10.—Unbeaten teams were as scarce as snow in July today in Ohio's high school basketball race, following last week's heavy program in which Old Man Defeat put the finger on a host of teams which had eluded him during the early-season firing.

Among the teams which skidded for the first time were Canton McKinley, Massillon, Ashland, Chillicothe and Fairmont of Dayton in Class A, and Butler, Granville and Johnstown in Class B.

Still riding the victory wagon in the "major" loop were Toledo Central Catholic with nine straight; New Philadelphia with eight; Bridgeport and Hillsboro with six; and New Boston, Alliance and Warren with five.

Top-notchers in Class B included Champion with 12 straight; Springfield with 11; South Charleston with 10; Harveysburg with nine; Canton Township, Hartsville and Zanesville St. Nicholas with eight; Plymouth with seven; Summit and Utica with six; and Cadiz with five.

Toledo Central stayed on the straight and narrow by beating Rossford 37 to 30. Up in Stark county the toll was terrific, however, as both Massillon and Canton McKinley, unbeaten until last week, dropped two in a row. New Philadelphia, runner-up for the state crown, lost its seventh and eighth wins by beating Massillon 24 to 18 Friday night, and smacking Akron South 34 to 16 Saturday. Massillon lost Saturday to Barbours 33 to 31 in an overtime encounter.

Canton McKinley was nosed out 24 to 22 by Alliance as the Aviators rang up their fifth straight Friday, and the Akron East squad added insult to injury by beating McKinley the next night 34 to 30, despite 15 points racked up by Nick Roman, Bulldog captain and All-Ohio football end.

Alliance will meet Salem Friday and Barbours Saturday. New Philadelphia matches shots with Uhrichsville Friday and East Liverpool Saturday.

Canton Township and Hartsville, Class B leaders in the Stark county area, won two each last week. Township beat Brewster 42 to 26 and Jackson Township 45-17, while Hartsville won over East Canton 28-18, and Uniontown 34-23.

Newark, defending Class A champ, took Cambridge into camp 46 to 33 for its fifth in six starts, but lost All-Ohio Guard Paul Adams for several weeks, the midweek sufferer from a sprained ankle. Bud Wolfinger led the Wildcats with 17 points. The champs met Coshocton and Lancaster this week.

Champion High of Trumbull county took a 21-19 decision over Johnston which had copied eight straight before running into this snag. Warren, Trumbull county's Class A representative, has five in a row, topping Girard 35-15 and Struthers 22-20 in an overtime last week.

Dayton Fairview looms as the toughest in that sector with seven wins in eight starts. Fairview beat Dayton Kiser 32 to 12 last week, and the lone defeat was at the hands of Sidney Dover squad, the winners toppled Fairmount out of the unbeaten list 27 to 16 after the Dayton squad had won four in a row. In that same area Springfield in Class B won its 11th straight by nosing out Reesville 26 to 24 in an extra session.

The rest of the schools should be led Zanesville St. Nicholas isn't a member of the state association, and thus is ineligible for tournament play. The Flyers have won eight in a row, beating Columbus McKimley, center, scored 17 points in that tilt to run his total to 153, an average of 19 per game.

Bridgeport romped to a six-game winning streak, beating Tillotville 59-29, Steubenville 45-34, and Weirton, W. Va., 33-28, in last week's games. Cadiz stayed up there in Class B with a 24-23 decision over Barnesville and a 56-26 conquest of Woodsfield.

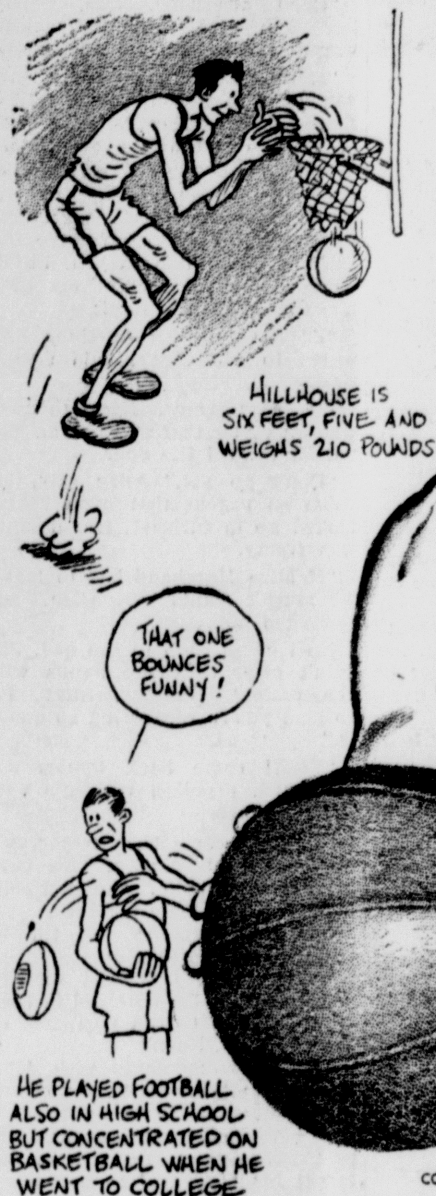

The week's individual laurels went to Bob Crawford of Lucas, near Mansfield. All he did was score 25 points with his team beat Lexington 35 to 33. The biggest upset was turned in by Ontario High, Mansfield suburb, when it knocked over the highly-touted Butler team, 23 to 22, ending that club's winning streak at seven. It was Ontario's second win of the campaign.

Lima Ball Draws Capacity Crowds
Up around Lima, where there are no unbeaten teams left, the gymnasium being packed to capacity no matter who plays, interest being at its keenest pitch in years. Lima South, which has won six and lost one, plays the first of its games with Lima Central this week, assuring another top crowd. The same holds true as Lima St. Johns with a 6-1 record, meets St. Rose in the start of their traditional series. The games come up Friday. Fostoria was Lima Central's latest victim, Shift getting 18 points and Lind 12 for the winners. The 36-35 decision, however, hung on Don David's longest two-point in the final minute.

Granville, Class B Licking county's champion for years, suffered its first defeat in the county league since the 1934-35 season as Summit swarmed to a 38-20 verdict. Down south at New Boston, which graduated this year to Class A, All-Ohio Center Carl Martin paced his mates to their fourth and fifth wins. He scored 18 as Waverly fell 47-25, and 20 as New Boston beat Wheelersburg 35-21. Martin has an average of 17.4 for the season.

Ashland, despite its loss to Sandusky Saturday in the season's first afternoon contest, tops the North Central league with three straight wins, the Sandusky defeat not being a league tilt. Don Bateman, Mt. Vernon's captain, is the top scorer in those parts with a 14.5 average for seven games. He got 18 Saturday as the Mounts topped Columbus West 46-37.

Middletown, which has lost a two-point to Portsmouth and a three-point to Dayton Steele in nine starts, ran over Ironton 54 to 25 Saturday with Capt. Joe Cornella snaring 17 points. Hamilton, 1937 champion, nosed out Portsmouth 15-17 for its second win over the Trojans.

COAST COACHES ELUDE 'WOLVES'

Thornhill, Phelan And Jones Stay Despite Loud Wails

By The Associated Press.
SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 10.—Wolves, the dark description for disgruntled alumni, howled long and loud at the doorsteps of some far western football coaches this last season, but in each case it now seems, the intended victim managed to yank in the "welcome" mat and slam the door in the face of the intruder.

One of the most notable cases has been that of C. E. "Tutty" Thornhill of Stanford University. The team lost six of nine games played. The material was supposed to be the best in years.

Thornhill, however, is not worrying. From high in the inner councils this department learns that the bulky Stanford mentor has been assured a new three-year contract will be forthcoming next April.

Phelan Still Has Contract
Washington's Jimmy Phelan was the target for written and verbal missiles throughout the season. His contract has one year to go. To buy up the contract of the head coach and his assistants would involve a pretty penny. He'll stay on despite a record of having lost five, won three and tied one.

Howard Jones of Southern California is the man of the hour, now, apparently able to dictate his own terms. The Rose Bowl win over Duke and the swat on the nose delivered to Notre Dame were good enough for anyone, alone wins in 11 starts and a tie for the coast conference championship. It was a different story when the Trojans lost the opener to Alabama, struggled through close ones and ran second to Washington.

They were all for riding Jones out of town on a rail early in the season. Yes, Howard agrees that football here is a fickle lot.

College Vote Confidence
Orin Hollingbery of Washington State, is one coach who can smile. His team lost six conference championship games, all of them, and won two contests of a scheduled nine, but he was given a vote of confidence by his college.

Leonard Allison of California; Lon Stiner of Oregon State; Doug Fessenden of Montana; Ted Bank of Idaho and Tex Oliver of Oregon breezed through without a bellow from the opposition which all coaches have.

McDaniels established their two-point lead at the end of the first half when the score stood 12 to 10. Walker scored the most points for the winners with five field goals and one foul. Gibb's five goals gave him second and W. Kimble's two two-pointers were next. Cook and Johnston found the hoop for a fielder apiece to complete the McDaniels scoring.

McHenry led Chaney's Sunoco with three from the field and one from the free line. Mounjoy and Swauger had three goals each, while L. Kimble and Ashba had four points apiece. The former made two goals and the latter one fielder and two charity tosses.

GRAND CIRCUITS MAY LEAVE OHIO

76-Day Cleveland Allotment Causes Dissension

By The Associated Press.
COLUMBUS, Jan. 10.—Ohio's end of the Grand Circuit harness racing circuit appeared up in the air today, officers of the organization said, sale of the North Randall track at Cleveland and the allotment of 76 consecutive days of races to ovals in that area causing the turmoil.

Will Gahagan, secretary, and E. R. Harriman, president of the top flight trotting-pacing wheel, said at a session of the new United States Trotting association it was possible for Ohio to have three Grand Circuit meetings, but that it also was possible for the state to have none.

For years the big circuit has opened at Toledo, and then swung over to Cleveland for the second meeting. That's out now, since the running meet at Cleveland would conflict with the harness horses under the Ohio law which prohibits two meetings in the same sector at the same time.

Columbus May Get Race
Gahagan said there was a possibility the scene of the second meeting would be shifted to Columbus, to either the state fairgrounds or the Euclid Park running track.

Should that possibility fail to materialize, however, indications were that Ohio would not be the scene of a single Grand Circuit meeting, since reinsmen probably would not ship from the south to Toledo for one meeting.

Should both the Toledo and Columbus meetings be held, the Grand Circuit officers inferred that a later date, probably between the Reading, Pa., and Lexington, Ky., meets in September, would be sought for Cleveland, the running races there being completed Aug. 26.

The Grand Circuit stewards will meet late this month, probably in New York, to map the campaign for 1939. Should all three Ohio meets be held, and another possible one at Milwaukee, Wis., a new site on the big wheel, the "Grand" this year would present about 14 weeks of racing.

Association Secretaries Named
The U. S. association, rounding out the merger of the United and National Trotting associations and the American Trotting Register association, named secretaries of those groups today to take charge of the three branch offices or the new group. Mrs. Don A. Dietrich of the United will operate from Bellefontaine, O. Roger Duncan of the National from Hartford, Conn., and Gahagan of the Trotting Register from Goshen, N. Y.

Frank L. Wiswall of Albany, N. Y., executive vice president and secretary of the merged association, said his group was determined to supervise racing in all parts of the country and was ready for "war or peace with the American Trotting association of Chicago to achieve that goal."

"The American was never invited to participate in the merger of the parent bodies, but refused, Wiswall said. "The gate is still open for them to come in, but if they slam it in our face we won't take it sitting down. Already we have assurances that Indiana, Illinois, Wisconsin and Kansas will shift to us from the American, leaving that association only Iowa and a few scattered points."

The City of New York (five boroughs) is 36 miles long, north and south, and 16 1/2 miles wide.

Twins Head For Sport Fame

WESTON, Mass., Jan. 10.—The Howe twins boast sports heritage. Daughters of illustrious parents in the sporting world, the 14-year-old girls today were being primed for national recognition in the tennis world. Coached by mother and dad, Betty and Peggy may soon round out a family combination comparable to the famed Wightmans, Bundys and Palfreys.

Henry Cotton Is Coming Across The Pond To Compete In Augusta Tournament—Dixie Scribes Rate O'Brien 101 Percent—Dodgers' Van Mungo Peeved

By EDDIE BRIETZ
Associated Press Sports Writer
NEW YORK, Jan. 10.—Henry Cotton, who is just about the best golfer abroad, is going to let us have a look at him. He has agreed to come across and play in the Augusta Masters tournament and maybe some others. Henry, who likes to feel the crinkle of those pound notes as well as the next one, recently picked up a flock of them with a two-week engagement in a London music hall. New Orleans newspapers say everything about the Sugar Bowl game was 100 percent except little Dave O'Brien—who was 101 percent.

Have you heard the latest? ... A report is going the rounds that the pro tour of the Messrs. Budge and Vines is being handled through the hinterlands by the well known wrestling barons, Toots Mondt, Ray Fabiani and Lou Daro. That should make Promoter Jack Harris' hair stand straight up. Jimmy Fox is starting the 1939 season with perfect timing. Lynn C. Doyle points out in the Philadelphia Evening Bulletin that Fox made his pass for that $40,000 salary just when President Roosevelt was blasting away for more and better spending.

Gents, are we going to have fun when the radio announcers try to describe the coming Louis-Lewis fight? ... George M. Varnell for years one of the best sports editors in the country, has been promoted to associate editor of the Seattle Times. H. W. MacLeod succeeds him as sports editor. Miami did something to Mike Jacobs. He came back wearing one of those Tyrolean hats which makes him look like a Princeton freshman. That roaring you hear is Van Mungo popping off about that $5,000 contract he has just received from the Dodgers.

Joe John Lewis doesn't give Joe Louis the best fight Joe has had since the first joust with Schmeling, you can see us. Most forlorn of all Britain's former fistie heroes is Phil Scott. He's wrestling for a living now in grubby half empty halls. Mine host Frank Winchell of the Tampa Terrace hotel is getting ready to lay a marker in the lobby of his inn commemorating the spot where Jack Miley now of the N. Y. Post and Irv Kupcinet of the Chicago Times "fit" the entire St. Louis Cardinal team two years ago. While Miley and Dizzy Dean were hot at it, Kupcinet, former North Dakota back, did a swell job of blocking the rest of the Cardinals. Ray Blades, new manager of the Cards, goes to bed at 9 p. m., which makes him a real one. Walter (Good Time Charlie) Friedman has signed up a heavyweight named Joe Hill who is stone deaf.

The Yellow Jackets of Baldwin-Wallace have corralled basketball victory No. 1.

The Bereans nosed out Kent State university last night in a tight Ohio conference battle, 26 to 24. Watts and Shurtzler bagged successive goals to shatter a 15-all half-time count and send Baldwin-Wallace into the lead. Watt's eight markers were high for the evening.

The University of Toledo quintet apparently recovered from last week's defeat by Ball State (Indiana), slashed the defense of Glenville (W. Va.) State Teachers to win, 48 to 40, thereby cutting a 40-game string of Glenville cage victories.

Charlie Chuckovics, Toledo forward, garnered 23 individual points, bringing his season's total for 11 games to 191. The Rockets were ahead 19-18 at the half.

Hiram college was compelled to go into an overtime period to take the measure of a scrappy Youngstown college aggregation, 34 to 32. It was Hiram's third straight win. Corletzi of Youngstown tied the count at 30-all during the final minute of the second half. Wilford and Leppert won for Hiram with a goal apiece in the extra stanza.
